

Vandenberg Now Looming As Favorite GOP Dark Horse

WASHINGTON, May 24—An underground search of popular support today is thrusting Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan into the role of favorite among "dark horse" possibilities for the Republican presidential nomination.

The "big three" will control more than two-thirds of the delegates, but the race appears to be wide open. The Republicans meet in Philadelphia four weeks from today.

Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio continues to lead in first ballot strength. Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York remains in the second spot and Stassen is a poor third.

The continuing International News Service poll shows the following first ballot strength: Taft, 301; Dewey, 268; Stassen, 134 delegates.

There is increasing talk among Republican leaders of a deadlock at Philadelphia. This in turn has led to fresh speculation about a "dark horse" nominee.

Vandenberg has become the favorite among "dark horses," taking that role away from Speaker Joseph Martin of Massachusetts.

This may be due to repeated rumors that Dewey will support Vandenberg if he cannot win the nomination for himself.

Some of Vandenberg's supporters are spreading this rumor. They say that Dewey himself has told intimates that if he cannot win he would prefer the nomination of Vandenberg to that of any other GOP contender.

In this connection, some Washington observers are writing and talking of a Vandenberg-Dewey ticket. This speculation is based on Vandenberg's repeated declaration that if elected he would serve only one term.

The story is that with Dewey supporting Vandenberg in 1948 and serving four years as his vice-president, Dewey would appear a cinch for the 1952 nomination.

The Dewey victory in Oregon, however, gave the New Yorker's supporters a new burst of confidence. More than that, it also served to deflate the boom for Stassen. There has been an apparent decline in Republican sentiment for Stassen in recent weeks.

Veteran observers say that the decline was caused by Stassen's attacks on both Taft and Dewey and his poor showings in Ohio and Oregon.

The Stassen decline seems to have brought in its wake the boom for Vandenberg as a "dark horse" nominee. There is evidence of the boom in many sections of the country. Some Republican forecasters seem to think that Vandenberg will capture the GOP convention this year just as Wendell Willkie did in 1940.

Eight years ago, Taft and Dewey were deadlocked for the nomination on early ballots. Then the Willkie stampede began. Dewey was the first to wilt and at one time Taft led the convention. But the Willkie boom was too strong and he finally swept on to victory.

This year, Vandenberg's friends hope he can repeat Willkie's feat. Both Dewey and Stassen have spoken well of Vandenberg in their campaign.

Plenty Of Action Due This Week On U. S. Labor Front

Coal Dispute To Dominate Scene; Rails, Autos, Phones Boiling

WASHINGTON, May 24—A heavy schedule of action looms this week on the labor-management front with government playing a major role.

Developments will embrace the coal, railroad, automobile and telephone industries, and the Taft-Hartley law which Congress passed last summer to maintain industrial peace.

A joint Senate-House committee starts three weeks of hearings today on possible amendments to the statute. First witnesses are Sen. Ives, (R) N. Y., and Rep. Landis, (R) Ind., testifying on their bills to eliminate the act's requirement for union shop elections.

Bills Plague Both Houses

Congress Recall Said Probable

WASHINGTON, May 24—House Speaker Martin, (R) Mass., indicated today that Congress will have to reconvene after the Republican national convention to clean up legislation now jamming both houses.

Martin said the chances of ousting by June 18 or 19 depend upon passage of appropriation bills. But he added: "I'm not optimistic. We're going to stay here until our work is done."

The speaker, a dark horse contender for the GOP presidential nomination, will preside over the Republican convention which opens in Philadelphia June 21.

The House chief is confident, however, that the GOP majority would be able to cut $2.5 billion from President Truman's total fund requests for fiscal 1949.

EIGHT OF the 12 regular major appropriation bills have passed the House. But the four have not yet gone to the Senate are among the biggest—Interior, Army-Air Force, Navy, and Economic Cooperation Administration (Marshall Plan).

A worse log jam confronts the Senate. There, exclusive of appropriation measures not yet handled, the upper chamber has more than half a dozen controversial items to handle. Any one of them could take a week of the Senate's time, especially the deferred fight over civil rights legislation.

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

The threat of peace seems to have passed successfully but it was mighty serious for a couple of days.

It is now emphatic that future shipments of olive branches should be addressed to Harry not Henry.

Henry's offer to go to Moscow has been received enthusiastically by both major parties. They suggest he leave now and return late in November.

But it's nice to know that nomination races are not always so bitter. It turns out now that Hull and Hopkins were promised the toga in the same year.

The fact that neither got it indicates an impartiality seldom equaled in this country. All the diaries aren't out yet. There may have been a third man who thought he was in the race.

Stoutsville Girl Seriously Hurt In Car Mishap

Miss Garnet Zeimer, 18, of Stoutsville, is in critical condition and a companion, Vonnice Williams, 25, of Mt. Sterling Route 1, is considered in fair condition at Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, after their car overturned early Sunday one mile east of Five Points on Route 56.

A third occupant in the car, Billy Sines of near Five Points, escaped injury when Williams reportedly lost control of his automobile, careened to the left and skidded to the right side of the road before overturning. State Highway Patrolman C. E. Wells reported.

Hospital attaches Monday said Miss Zeimer suffered a fractured skull, punctured lung, six broken ribs and internal injuries. Williams, they said, received severe cuts and bruises and a back injury.

Wells declared the accident occurred about 4 a. m. Sunday. Both Miss Zeimer and Williams were thrown out of the car. It is believed the automobile rolled over on the girl before coming to a halt, the patrolman stated.

The two injured passengers were removed to the hospital in a Mt. Sterling ambulance. Wells said Monday it is probable negligent driving charges will be filed against Williams.

Dewey's Oregon Margin Widens

PORTLAND, May 24—Observers predicted today that New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey may roll up a 10,000-vote victory over Harold E. Stassen when final votes are counted in last Friday's Oregon preferential primary.

The tally early today, with only a few upstate precincts to be heard from, gave Dewey a 9,238-vote edge over the Minnesotan in Oregon's bitterly fought elections.

The count stood: Dewey 111,657; Stassen 102,419.

Meat Price Drop Unseen

Packers Return To 3 Big Plants

CHICAGO, May 24—No immediate drop in meat prices was seen today as the first of 90,000 packinghouse workers returned from a 68-day strike to their jobs at three of the "big four" packers.

The walkout continued at Wilson and Co. for the 70th day.

Police guarded against possible violence on the Wilson picket lines should union men attempt to halt a reported back-to-work movement.

Armour, Cudahy and Swift began calling their employees back as needed.

Meanwhile, George Dressler, secretary of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers, said he did not expect prices to drop immediately.

However, the flow of livestock into Chicago's Union Stockyards neared normal for the first time since the nation's longest and costliest strike began March 16.

Some 100,000 CIO-United Packinghouse Workers had walked out in 140 packing plants across the nation for a 29-cent hourly pay boost. They accepted a nine-cent-an-hour increase from Armour, Cudahy and Swift.

THE STRIKERS in last Thursday and Friday's balloting had voted against returning to the Wilson plants because of the firm's refusal to rehire employees fired for acts of violence and intimidation.

Wilson said discharged employees could take up their grievances through the National Labor Relations Board rather than through machinery in the current contract which expires Aug. 11.

Wilson officials accused union leaders of fraud in conducting the balloting. They said the election had been postponed a day after an earlier canvass had shown most of their 10,000 employees wanted to end the walkout.

Draft Bill Is Readied

House Debate Due Wednesday

WASHINGTON, May 24—A House battle on the issue of inducting 18-year-olds for one year of military service was in prospect for about June 1 as the rules committee prepared today to bring out a draft measure by mid-week.

A members of the committee said the bill will be out by Wednesday, and that it will reach the floor of the House under an "open rule" permitting amendments to be offered. It is expected to be called up next week.

Both House and Senate leaders have agreed to draft men 19 through 25 for two years service anywhere in the world. The Senate armed services committee informally has agreed to delete compulsory induction of 18-year-olds for one year of training in the United States.

Whether the House will go along with the latter decision is uncertain. Rep. Kilday, (D) Tex., predicts there will be spirited debate on the proposal.

KILDAY pointed out that the Senate plan would substitute voluntary enlistment for compulsory induction of youths 18 years old, and would fix a quota of 161,000 on those who could fulfill their military requirement with one (Continued on Page Two)

The unpredictable elements accepted the weatherman's "dare" and gave sections of Ohio today some of the lowest temperatures on record for this time of the year.

A sunny and warm weather forecast for Sunday was nullified by a blast of very cool air from the Hudson Bay area. In addition, it rained in Northeastern Ohio.

Akron and Cleveland Monday morning had lows of 35 degrees, the coldest temperatures on record for May 24. Weathermen said records for 77 years show nothing quite so cold for this late a date.

They said that there was a little scattered frost in Northern Ohio during the night, but that in most cases its formation was retarded by rain-soaked vegetation.

Southern and Central Ohio were not affected by either rain or cold. Even Northern Ohio fared better than the sister state of Michigan where the mercury dropped to 30 degrees at Cadillac.

Taft Is Given Service Award

WASHINGTON, May 24—Sen. Robert A. Taft, (R) Ohio, today was presented with the Wedge Award for 1947, symbolizing "unselfish devotion to duty, integrity and beneficence to others."

The presentation was made by Eric Johnston on behalf of the Georgia-Pacific Plywood and Lumber Co., which annually bestows the award for outstanding public service.

Taft was chosen for the honor by a committee made up of legislators, educators, and industrialists.

YANKS FINANCING ZION WAR?

Solon Would Bar British From Giving ERP To Arabs

WASHINGTON, May 24—Rep. Sabath, (D) Ill., today asked Congress to bar the British from using American foreign aid funds to support Trans-Jordan and other Arab countries who have invaded Palestine.

In a letter to Rep. Taber, (R) N. Y., chairman of the House appropriations committee, the dean of the House said:

"The American people and the Congress never intended that American funds should be used to help Arab armies wage war against the only democratic state in the Middle East."

Sabath urged Taber to include in the foreign aid bill a prohibition against diversion of American funds. The measure contains appropriations for the European Recovery Program, including a request for one billion 324 million dollars for Great Britain.

In the upper house, Sen. Bridges, (R) N. H., Senate appropriations committee chairman, has announced he will investigate to determine whether American funds are being used by Great Britain to underwrite the annual $8 million subsidy furnished King Abdullah.

The British foreign office has stated it plans to continue the subsidy, as well as British military aid to Trans-Jordan, Iraq and Saudi Arabia, all of whom have declared war against the new state of Israel.

Sen. Wagner, (D) N. Y., commented that "this British action immediately gives rise to the question whether the American taxpayer should aid Britain under the European Recovery Program."

Rep. Celler, (D) N. Y., plans to introduce today a bill to deny all ERP aid to Great Britain while other developments appeared likely also unless the war in Palestine is terminated soon.

Sabath pointed out that the new Jewish state has been recognized by the United States government, and added: "It seems strange that we should continue to permit Great Britain to use American funds to help slaughter innocent men, women and children in the Holy Land."

Twin Poppy Sale Is Set

VFW, Legion Join To Aid Veterans

The combined auxiliaries of Circleville Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion will be unleashed here Saturday in the sale of Buddy Poppies and Memorial Poppies.

Both the Legion and VFW auxiliaries hope to end a long period of competition in the sale of the poppies, having combined to form a stronger unit to aid veterans of both world wars.

The crepe Memorial Poppy of the Legion and the silk Buddy Poppy of the VFW will be on sale by Circleville youngsters, backed with a proclamation by Mayor Thurman I. Miller which states that Saturday will be known as "Poppy Day" in Circleville.

The poppies for the organizations are made by disabled veterans confined to hospitals. The VFW poppies were made by the veterans in the Dayton VA hospital and the Legion's poppies were made by patients in the Sandusky hospital.

PURPOSE of the sale of the artificial flower, representing the flowers planted in Flanders Field after World War I in memory of the war dead, is to aid the disabled and to rehabilitate the crippled of both wars.

Along with the many benefits, the money from the Poppy Sale helps widows and orphans of the veterans.

Mrs. Pauline Russell is head of the sales for the VFW and Mrs. Robert Shadley is in charge of the Legion project.

U.S. Calls For Peace

World Council Waits Decision

LAKE SUCCESS, May 24—The United Nations indicated today it is ready to give the warring factions in Palestine additional time to accept its cease-fire edict.

Although the deadline of noon (EST) today was fixed by the Security Council for Israel and the Arab League to say yes or no, the 11-nation body will wait until tomorrow to meet the challenge if its decree has been ignored.

Alexander Parodi, French council chairman will present any communications from the consular group late today when the Security Council reconvenes without pressing the Palestine issue.

In the meantime, U. S. spokesmen indicated that if at a stated time the council decides that the cease-fire command has been ignored, the United States will move instantly to invoke stern measures in far stronger terms than has been done previously.

ALREADY, the United States has called on the Arab states to "cease fire" in Palestine in their capacity as "fellow members of the United Nations."

Joseph E. Moody, president of the Southern Coal Producers' Association, has asked the NLRB to obtain a court injunction to compel Lewis to bargain on a new contract to replace the one expiring June 30.

The UMW chief refused to seat the Southern association in a joint coal-wage parity last week, and the conference abruptly collapsed.

Lewis also has declared that the union will not sign a new contract unless it activates the miners' welfare fund which contains some $36 million contributed through a 10-cents-a-ton royalty on coal.

Payments from the fund have been held up by court action of the operators in a dispute over a pension plan for the miners. Lewis released a report yesterday by Murray W. Latimer, former chairman of the U. S. rail-

Senator Pushes New Law To Admit 200,000 DPs

WASHINGTON, May 24—Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., is scheduled to spearhead a bipartisan attempt today to permit 200 thousand homeless Europeans to enter the United States in the next two years.

Ferguson will press on the Senate floor for an amendment to the displaced bill now up for consideration. The bill now provides for the admission of only 100 thousand DPs over the two year period ending June 30, 1950.

The Michigan senator said he is prepared to demonstrate to the Senate that the higher number of admissions would not harm the national welfare.

Sen. Wherry, (R) Nebr., acting GOP majority leader in the Senate, hopes to get a vote on the DP bill, with or without the doubling amendment, by the end of Wednesday's session.

Co-sponsors of the Ferguson amendment are Sens. Smith, (R) N. J., Cooper, (R) Ky., McGrath, (D) R. I., Saltonstall, (R) Mass., and Morse, (R) Ore.

McGrath will also fight for a substitute bill which he has introduced with Sen. Hatch, (D) N. M., to meet objections raised by President Truman.

Senator Lucas, (D) Ill., has told the Senate that the President believes the bill discriminates against certain races and nationalities.

The bill provides that half of the DPs admitted would have to come from Eastern Poland and the Baltic countries now controlled by Russia. It also provides that half of them must be farmers and that jobs and adequate housing must be available for the rest.

Both the Legion and VFW auxiliaries hope to end a long period of competition in the sale of the poppies, having combined to form a stronger unit to aid veterans of both world wars.

The crepe Memorial Poppy of the Legion and the silk Buddy Poppy of the VFW will be on sale by Circleville youngsters, backed with a proclamation by Mayor Thurman I. Miller which states that Saturday will be known as "Poppy Day" in Circleville.

The poppies for the organizations are made by disabled veterans confined to hospitals. The VFW poppies were made by the veterans in the Dayton VA hospital and the Legion's poppies were made by patients in the Sandusky hospital.

PURPOSE of the sale of the artificial flower, representing the flowers planted in Flanders Field after World War I in memory of the war dead, is to aid the disabled and to rehabilitate the crippled of both wars.

Along with the many benefits, the money from the Poppy Sale helps widows and orphans of the veterans.

Mrs. Pauline Russell is head of the sales for the VFW and Mrs. Robert Shadley is in charge of the Legion project.

U.S. Calls For Peace

World Council Waits Decision

LAKE SUCCESS, May 24—The United Nations indicated today it is ready to give the warring factions in Palestine additional time to accept its cease-fire edict.

Although the deadline of noon (EST) today was fixed by the Security Council for Israel and the Arab League to say yes or no, the 11-nation body will wait until tomorrow to meet the challenge if its decree has been ignored.

Alexander Parodi, French council chairman will present any communications from the consular group late today when the Security Council reconvenes without pressing the Palestine issue.

In the meantime, U. S. spokesmen indicated that if at a stated time the council decides that the cease-fire command has been ignored, the United States will move instantly to invoke stern measures in far stronger terms than has been done previously.

ALREADY, the United States has called on the Arab states to "cease fire" in Palestine in their capacity as "fellow members of the United Nations."

Flanders Raps Security Plan

WASHINGTON, May 24—Sen. Flanders, (R) Vt., one of the leaders of the congressional movement for a showdown with Russia in the United Nations, today rejected the Vandenberg collective security plan as "completely unsatisfactory."

Flanders stood pat on demands of a bipartisan Senate group for elimination of the veto right of the great powers in cases of aggression and for establishment of a world police force to carry out decisions of the Security Council by majority vote.

Despite the critical attitude of senators who share Flanders' views, members of the Senate foreign relations committee are confident that the Vandenberg plan will be approved in the Senate by a large majority. The resolution has the endorsement of the State department.

Flanders assailed the part played by State department officials in drafting the Vandenberg resolution. He charged that it was put forward as an answer to proposals in both the Senate and the United Nations.

Compromise Bill On A-Panel Said Unwise By Demos

WASHINGTON, May 24—Six Democratic members of the joint congressional atomic committee today denounced as "unwise and dangerous" the compromise bill to extend the terms of atomic commission members for two years.

The minority credited Sen. Taft, (R) Ohio, GOP policy chief, with originating the idea that confirmation of Atomic Chairman David E. Lilienthal and his four colleagues for longer terms would mean a "bitter political fight."

In a report to congress, the minority members made public letters of the atomic advisory committee during confirmation and accepting the compromise bill only as a "second choice" to avoid a disruptive controversy. The scientists expressed "shock" that a political fight was "even a possibility."

The minority report was signed by Sen. McMahon, (D) Conn., Sen. Connolly, (D) Texas, and Reps. Johnson, (D) Tex., Durham, (D) N. C., Hollifield, (D) Cal., and Price, (D) Ill.

THEY REJECTED as "specious and doubly dangerous" the majority finding that the program of the atomic commission is still in a formative stage and that the joint committee has not had ample time or information upon which to base a decision. They said:

"There is no justifiable reason for a 'bitter political fight' over confirmation of the nominees as submitted by the President. If politics intrudes this time, it will create a precedent that may live on indefinitely."

Eleanor Raps Red's Knuckles

LAKE SUCCESS, May 24—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt tangled with the Soviet bloc in the United Nations today over United States policy in refusing visas to Russian delegates to Lake Success.

A. N. Pavlov, Russian delegate to the Human Rights Commission, declared in the opening session of that 17-member body that such action by the U. S. embassy in Moscow "indicated a lack of respect for the United Nations."

The incident concerned a disclosure by Pavlov that the U. S. embassy turned down the applications of V. K. Prokoudovitch of the Ukraine and of an unidentified Bielo-Russian delegate, both of them assigned to attend the sessions of the Human Rights Commission here.

Mrs. Roosevelt, in answering the charges of the Russian delegate, said:

"If there was no delay and discrimination in entering the USSR, there would be no delay and discrimination in entering the U. S."

Famous German Flier Released

Herbert Raps Commie Drive

ST. MARYS, May 24—The twin-pronged threat of Communism against "the Western system of religion and the Western philosophy of government" stood condemned today by Gov. Thomas J. Herbert.

The Ohio chief executive, however, warned against meeting the threat with "intolerance or self-styled vigilante committees."

In an address opening Camp St. Marys of the Evangelical United Brethren church, Herbert declared that Communism "is a serious challenge" and added:

"The disciples of Marx, Engels and Lenin for years have derided Western political, economic and religious foundations."

"In fact, in the past years, we have heard so much of the evils of our system that we seem to be self-conscious about speaking out for the truly splendid heritage with which we have been blessed."

The action assumed added significance inasmuch as Secretary of State Marshall recently pointed to the meetings on the Austrian treaty as one place where Moscow could show its changed attitude on the "cold war."

man said the identity of the sniper who killed Wasson was unknown. Haganah, the Jewish fighting agency, claims the veteran diplomat was killed by an Arab. The Arabs have issued no statement.

Wasson was shot while returning through Jerusalem streets from a futile United Nations Truce Commission meeting seeking a halt in the fighting. He was the American representative on the commission.

Walker was fatally wounded Friday in an exchange of fire behind the American embassy in Jerusalem. The State department has received no reports, however, as to the identity of the participants in the street battle.

in Egypt, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia and Yemen.

The American ministers to these states were directed to carry their appeal directly either to the chief of state or the foreign minister of each country.

Spokesman Michael McDermott was questioned on whether the new U. S. communication would prove a step to lifting the Middle East arms embargo should the Arab states fail to comply with the UN resolution.

He declined to interpret the action, but said that lifting of the embargo is still under active consideration.

Iraq has opposed the cease-fire demand but Arab League leaders were reported to have asked for a 36-hour extension of the time limit on a truce agreement. They are meeting at Amman, the Trans-Jordan capital.

The Iraq announcement said that Arab armies will continue to fight until the Jews "surrender unconditionally" and that no notice will be taken of the Security Council ultimatum.

Even As Arab Leaders Met, a Communique Was Issued Announcing That Egyptian Forces Have Begun an Attack on the Jewish Settlement of Ramat Rachel, Two Miles North of Bethlehem.

The communique said that "heavy casualties" have been inflicted on the Jewish defenders.

The announcement caused some confusion. Earlier, an "Arab high command" communique said that Arab Legion troops had "occupied" the settlement. At the same time, Jewish sources announced that attacks had been beaten off, with 31 Arabs and 12 Jews killed.

Dispatches from Jerusalem said that the Arab Legion is now launching fresh attacks on Ramat Rachel, using artillery and armored cars, while Haganah reinforcements from Jerusalem have been rushed to aid defense of the settlement.

Jewish fighters reportedly still are holding out resolutely inside Jerusalem's old walled city, despite 11 days of continuous Arab Legion onslaughts. There is no disposition to surrender.

The shortages of fuel, of food, and of water become steadily aggravated, but the feeling of the Jewish civilian population was summed up by one Jewish Agency official as:

"Annihilation rather than Abdullah!"

Bodies of Jewish dead are piling up in the morgues and hospitals because the city's two Jewish cemeteries are under constant Arab fire.

The walled city, according to refugees from Nazi persecution, now resembles the Warsaw ghetto after Hitler's henchmen were through with it.

Russians Hold Quartet Of Yank Rabbit-Hunters

BERLIN, May 24—Four U. S. Army men, engaged in an AMG-organized rabbit hunt, were arrested today by Russian guards and released after questioning at Soviet headquarters in Potsdam.

The provost marshal's office announced that the four were seized in the American sector, near the Russian zone boundary at Babelsburg.

The provost marshal added that the Russian guards, who seized the four shotgun-armed Americans, were stationed in the American sector, with AMG permission, to guard the approaches to the home of the Russian commander-in-chief, Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky.

In a second incident, Russian-appointed Berlin Police Chief Paul R. Markgraf refused to accept three liaison officers sent to the Berlin police headquarters by the United States, France and Britain.

THE MEN were appointed by the Western Allies after the Russian representative walked out of the Kommandatura public safety committee.

The Russians refused to return their representative to the committee until British Capt. James D. Stewart apologized for his conduct at the previous meeting.

The Soviets charged that Stewart "frightened and insulted" the Russian representative by pounding on the table.

Cotton Futures Drop $5 Bale

NEW YORK, May 24—Cotton futures on the New York Cotton Exchange tumbled nearly $5 a bale at the opening today under a weekend accumulation of liquidating orders.

Heavy selling followed the request by the Economic Cooperation Administration that foreign countries stop buying United States cotton until financial details can be arranged.

Cotton traders feared this would mean further delay in getting the export movement under way. The October contract sustained the widest decline, breaking 97 points to 32.88 cents per pound.

On the other hand, both Taft and Dewey are reported highly enthusiastic about their own chances of being nominated. It is certain they will insist on a series of ballots to determine whether their own confidential reports of impending victory are true or false.

There is always the possibility that Taft and Dewey will get together personally and join forces for the nomination of one or the other. Their joint followings dominate the convention. They may well take a lesson from 1940 and rather than batter each other into defeat, toss a coin and give victory to one or the other.

Firemen Called On Small Blazes

A burning stump and a gasoline stove fire were the causes of the two calls made by Circleville firemen over the weekend.

The stump fire was on North Court street in front of the home of Bernard Stocklin. Fire men said Stocklin had set the fire in the stump Saturday to burn it out, but had become excited when the flames threatened cars parked along the curb nearby.

The other fire call was Sunday at the home of the Rev. Alonzo Hill on West Corwin street. The gasoline stove in the Hill home had started blazing, according to firemen, and a fire was discovered in the Hill closet. No damages resulted from either fire, according to Acting Chief Noble Barr Monday.

Compromise Bill On A-Panel Said Unwise By Demos

WASHINGTON, May 24—Six Democratic members of the joint congressional atomic committee today denounced as "unwise and dangerous" the compromise bill to extend the terms of atomic commission members for two years.

The minority credited Sen. Taft, (R) Ohio, GOP policy chief, with originating the idea that confirmation of Atomic Chairman David E. Lilienthal and his four colleagues for longer terms would mean a "bitter political fight."

In a report to congress, the minority members made public letters of three scientist members of the atomic advisory committee during confirmation and accepting the compromise bill only as a "second choice" to avoid a disruptive controversy. The scientists expressed "shock" that a political fight was "even a possibility."

The minority report was signed by Sen. McMahon, (D) Conn., Sen. Connolly, (D) Texas, and Reps. Johnson, (D) Tex., Durham, (D) N. C., Hollifield, (D) Cal., and Price, (D) Ill.

THEY REJECTED as "specious and doubly dangerous" the majority finding that the program of the atomic commission is still in a formative stage and that the joint committee has not had ample time or information upon which to base a decision.

"There is no justifiable reason for a 'bitter political fight' over confirmation of the nominees as submitted by the President. If politics intrudes this time, it will create a precedent that may live on indefinitely."

Eleanor Raps Red's Knuckles

LAKE SUCCESS, May 24—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt tangled with the Soviet bloc in the United Nations today over United States policy in refusing visas to Russian delegates to Lake Success.

A. N. Pavlov, Russian delegate to the Human Rights Commission, declared in the opening session of that 17-member body that such action by the U. S. embassy in Moscow "indicated a lack of respect for the United Nations."

The incident concerned a disclosure by Pavlov that the U. S. embassy turned down the applications of V. K. Prokoudovitch of the Ukraine and of an unidentified Bielo-Russian delegate, both of them assigned to attend the sessions of the Human Rights Commission here.

Mrs. Roosevelt, in answering the charges of the Russian delegate, said: "If there was no delay and discrimination in entering the USSR, there would be no delay and discrimination in entering the U. S."

Famous German Flier Released

FRANKFURT, May 24—Hanna Reitsch, Germany's most famous woman pilot, was released by German authorities today after brief detention for trying to cross the border into Austria illegally.

B-29s To Return To America

WIESBADEN, May 24—U. S. Air Force headquarters announced today that three B-29 Superfortresses, en route to Okinawa from Germany, will fly to the United States instead.

The Senate decision for voluntary enlistment of 18-year-olds is understood to have won for the draft bill the support of Sen. Taft, (R) Ohio, GOP policy chairman who opposed the draft of youths at 18.

CLEVELAND, May 24—The 51st annual convention of the National Congress of Parents of Teachers open here today with more than 3,000 delegates from every state in the Union and Hawaii attending.

Herbert Raps Commie Drive

ST. MARYS, May 24—The twin-pronged threat of Communism against "the Western system of religion and the Western philosophy of government" stood condemned today by Gov. Thomas J. Herbert.

The Ohio chief executive, however warned against meeting the threat with "intolerance or self-styled vigilante committees."

In an address opening Camp St. Marys of the Evangelical United Brethren church, Herbert declared that Communism "is a serious challenge" and added:

"The disciples of Marx, Engels and Lenin for years have derided Western political, economic and religious foundations."

"In fact, in the past years, we have heard so much of the evils of our system that we seem to be self-conscious about speaking out for the truly splendid heritage with which we have been blessed."

The action assumed added significance inasmuch as Secretary of State Marshall recently pointed to the meetings on the Austrian treaty as one place where Moscow could show its changed attitude on the "cold war."

Wasson was shot while returning through Jerusalem streets from a futile United Nations Truce Commission meeting seeking a halt in the fighting. He was the American representative on the commission.

Walker was fatally wounded Friday in an exchange of fire behind the American embassy in Jerusalem. The State department has received no reports, however, as to the identity of the participants in the street battle.

Both men will be buried today. Funeral services for Wasson will be held in the Catholic Rosary Convent across the street from the American consulate. His body will be brought to the United States for burial after hostilities cease. There were no details of funeral plans for Walker.

in Egypt, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia and Yemen.

The American ministers to these states were directed to carry their appeal directly either to the chief of state or the foreign minister of each country.

Spokesman Michael McDermott was questioned on whether the new U. S. communication would prove a prelude to lifting the Middle East arms embargo should the Arab states fail to comply with the UN resolution.

He declined to interpret the action, but said that lifting of the embargo is still under active consideration.

Iraq has opposed the cease-fire demand but Arab League leaders were reported to have asked for a 36-hour extension of the time limit on a truce agreement. They are meeting at Amman, the Trans-Jordan capital.

The Iraq announcement said that Arab armies will continue to fight until the Jews "surrender unconditionally" and that no notice will be taken of the Security Council ultimatum.

EVEN AS Arab leaders met, a communique was issued announcing that Egyptian forces have begun an attack on the Jewish settlement of Ramat Rachel, two miles north of Bethlehem.

The communique said that "heavy casualties" have been inflicted on the Jewish defenders.

The announcement caused some confusion. Earlier, an "Arab high command" communique said that Arab Legion troops had "occupied" the settlement. At the same time, Jewish sources announced that attacks had been beaten off, with 31 Arabs and 12 Jews killed.

Dispatches from Jerusalem said that the Arab Legion is now launching fresh attacks on Ramat Rachel, using artillery and armored cars, while Haganah reinforcements from Jerusalem have been rushed to aid defense of the settlement.

Jewish fighters reportedly still are holding out resolutely inside Jerusalem's old walled city, despite 11 days of continuous Arab Legion onslaughts. There is no disposition to surrender.

The shortages of fuel, of food, and of water become steadily aggravated, but the feeling of the Jewish civilian population was summed up by one Jewish Agency official as: "Annihilation rather than Abdullah."

Bodies of Jewish dead are piling up in the morgues and hospitals because the city's two Jewish cemeteries are under constant Arab fire.

The walled city, according to refugees from Nazi persecution, now resembles the Warsaw ghetto after Hitler's henchmen were through with it.

Russians Hold Quartet Of Yank Rabbit-Hunters

BERLIN, May 24—Four U. S. Army men, engaged in an AMG-organized rabbit hunt, were arrested today by Russian guards and released after questioning at Soviet headquarters in Potsdam.

The provost marshal's office announced that the four were seized in the American sector, near the Russian zone boundary at Babelsburg.

The provost marshal added that the Russian guards, who seized the four shotgun-armed American soldiers, were stationed in the American sector, with AMG permission, to guard the approaches to the home of the Russian commander-in-chief, Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky.

In a second incident, Russian-appointed Berlin Police Chief Paul R. Markgraf refused to accept three liaison officers sent to the Berlin police headquarters by the United States, France and Britain.

THE MEN were appointed by the Western Allies after the Russian representative walked out of the Kommandatura public safety committee.

The Russians refused to return their representative to the committee until British Capt. James D. Stewart apologized for his conduct at the previous meeting.

The Soviets charged that Stewart "frightened and insulted" the Russian representative by pounding on the table.

Cotton Futures Drop $5 Bale

NEW YORK, May 24—Cotton futures on the New York Cotton Exchange tumbled nearly $5 a bale at the opening today under a weekend accumulation of liquidating orders.

Heavy selling followed the request by the Economic Cooperation Administration that foreign countries stop buying United States cotton until financial details can be arranged.

Cotton traders feared this would mean further delay in getting the export movement under way. The October contract sustained the widest decline, breaking 97 points to 32.88 cents per pound.

paings. If both support him, after an early deadlock, he would become an overwhelming favorite to win.

On the other hand, both Taft and Dewey are reported highly enthusiastic about their own chances of being nominated. It is certain they will insist on a series of ballots to determine whether their own confidential reports of impending victory are true or false.

There is always the possibility that Taft and Dewey will get together personally and join forces for the nomination of one or the other. Their joint followings dominate the convention. They may well take a lesson from 1940 and rather than batter each other into defeat, toss a coin and give victory to one or the other.

Firemen Called On Small Blazes

A burning stump and a gasoline stove fire were the causes of the two calls made by Circleville firemen over the weekend.

The stump fire was on North Court street in front of the home of Bernard Stocklin. Firemen said Stocklin had set the fire in the stump Saturday to burn it out, but had become excited when the flames threatened cars parked along the curb nearby.

The other fire call was Sunday at the home of the Rev. Alonzo Hill on West Corwin street. The gasoline stove in the Hill home had started blazing, according to firemen, and a fire was discovered in the Hill closet. No damages resulted from either fire, according to Acting Chief Noble Barr Monday.

Curing Hay In Field Is Delicate Job

5,000 Pounds Water In Ton

COLUMBUS, May 24—Field curing hay so that it is down to 20 percent moisture content and safe for mow storage requires the removal of from 5,000 to 6,000 pounds of water for each ton of hay hauled to the barn. Those tonnages of water are present in meadow crops which contain from 70 to 80 percent of moisture when mowed.

Agricultural engineers at Ohio State university say hay can be dried from 70 to 35 percent moisture in six hours on a bright August day when the temperature is around 90 degrees and a 10-mile breeze is blowing.

The story is different on a sticky, partly cloudy day, when it may be impossible to dry the hay below 45 percent moisture between eight o'clock in the morning and sundown.

The engineers explain that a hayloader does not work efficiently when hay contains more than 45 percent moisture, and that farmers are likely to let hay get dry enough so the leaves shatter so it can be handled easily with machinery. The leaves dry more quickly than the stems so they become brittle enough to break off while the stems still are so tough they become tangled in loading.

HAY WHICH is to be mow dried can be placed in the barn anytime it can be handled with the loading machinery, but the excess water in the hay has to be hauled and then removed by artificial methods. Successful mow drying depends upon forcing plenty of air through the hay. The air not only carries away the moisture but it also brings in the heat which evaporates moisture from the hay.

The engineers estimate that a fan which will push 15,000 cubic feet of air a minute will be needed to dry long hay piled 10 feet in a 30 by 34-foot mow when the hay contains 35 percent moisture will have twice as much excess water so twice as much air will be required or the depth of the hay should be reduced by half.

Priest Lashes Funds Denial

CLEVELAND, May 24—Government denial of tax funds to parochial schools is an open invitation to totalitarianism.

That was the opinion expressed by the Rev. William E. McManus, assistant director of the department of education of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, in an address yesterday at the final meeting of the Catholic Press Association convention here.

Father McManus, a recognized authority in the field of educational legislation, contended that "when Catholic school administrators demand aid for parochial schools they contribute to preservation of democracy by opposing a view of the relationship of government to education."

The earliest known lighthouses were beacon fires in towers erected in Lower Egypt several hundred years before Christ.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Ammunition for Fighting Japanese Beetles

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

IF YOU have had an encounter with Popillia japonica, the official title of the Japanese beetle, you know from experience what a pesky pest it is.

In the adult stage, the Japanese beetle eats the foliage of nearly every variety of plant or tree it comes into contact with, while in the grub stage the same pest feeds on roots of grass and garden plants below ground, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

The female beetles lay their eggs in the soil, two to six inches deep. When the eggs hatch, the young grubs, illustrated, gorge on decaying vegetation and the roots they find overhead. From the end of June and well into July, the adult beetles emerge from the soil ready to devour the garden.

Plant scientists have come up with various forms of ammunition for fighting Japanese beetles, among them, DDT, Chlordane (also known as 1068) and spore dust.

One method of attack is to apply a 5 per cent DDT dust to the lawn at the rate of 10 pounds per 1,000 square feet of space. Doing this before a rain will save one chore; otherwise, the application should be watered into the ground. If liquid application is preferred, one pound of wettable 50 per cent DDT powder is mixed in 10 gallons of water and applied in a sprinkling can or sprayer to every 1,000 square feet of area.

Chlordane, however, is reported to be the fastest working chemical yet found against Japanese beetle grubs in soil, killing 2 1/2 times faster than DDT, or nearly 100 per cent control in a month. This means that turf can be treated in the spring with some hope of reducing grub injury and the adult beetle population that same summer. Milky disease spore dust is reported good for long range control.

One of the principal means of meeting this challenge is for the poultry raiser to start selling chickens under brand names in an effort to promote his product for the time when consumers again will be "choosy."

To accomplish this, good packaging is essential. Modern transparent packaging of ready-to-eat poultry will increase sales and profits.

TESTS CONDUCTED with the same grade of poultry, half being sealed in flexible packages, the others without covering, proved that demand for the packaged birds was one to three times as large as for the unwrapped ones.

For packaging, cellophane, transparent regenerated cellulose film or a rubber hydrochloride film are available. They are moisture-proof, air-proof, strong, flexible and resistant to liquid and grease.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Observer

The announcement that King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan and the president of Syria have "eloquently buried their differences" and topped off the love-feast with a "sumptuous repast" has drawn attention to a major factor in Middle East hostilities.

This is the existence of long-standing differences between Arab leaders themselves.

Family warfare and tribal ambitions have been cloaked over to a large degree by apparent unification of the Arab League. While the Arab states may continue banded together in an effort to drive the Jews out of Palestine even such a victory would not eliminate the old differences among them.

Some Jewish observers believe that what Abdullah has termed a "holy war" against Jewry actually is in point of fact nothing but the initial phase in a knockdown-dragout fight. It will determine which of the ruling Arab families will attain dominant power and all the wealth in subsidies and oil production that goes with it.

THEY ARE convinced also that unless a permanent truce can be arranged, the final inter-Arab war will change the whole international picture in the Middle East in a manner deeply affecting British and French colonial and industrial interests.

The collapse of Arab solidarity dates from 1922.

In that year King Abdullah's father was driven out of the Hedjaz by the armed forces of Ibn Saud, King of Saudi Arabia. The Hedjaz contains the two Arab holy cities of Mecca and Medina.

Abdullah never forgave Ibn Saud for depriving his family of these two cities whose possession means more than any other single thing to an Arab ruler from the viewpoint of prestige.

Just what "differences" were buried by Abdullah and the Syrian president are not known. The talks, however, may have dealt to some extent with Abdul-

Curing Hay In Field Is Delicate Job

5,000 Pounds Water In Ton

COLUMBUS, May 24—Field curing hay so that it is down to 20 percent moisture content and safe for mow storage requires the removal of from 5,000 to 6,000 pounds of water for each ton of hay hauled to the barn. Those tonnages of water are present in meadow crops which contain from 70 to 80 percent of moisture when mowed.

Agricultural engineers at Ohio State university say hay can be dried from 70 to 35 percent moisture in six hours on a bright August day when the temperature is around 90 degrees and a 10-mile breeze is blowing.

The story is different on a sticky, partly cloudy day, when it may be impossible to dry the hay below 45 percent moisture between eight o'clock in the morning and sundown.

The engineers explain that a hayloader does not work efficiently when hay contains more than 45 percent moisture, and that farmers are likely to let hay get dry enough so the leaves shatter so it can be handled easily with machinery. The leaves dry more quickly than the stems so they become brittle enough to break off while the stems still are so tough they become tangled in loading.

HAY WHICH is to be mow dried can be placed in the barn anytime it can be handled with the loading machinery, but the excess water in the hay has to be hauled and then removed by artificial methods. Successful mow drying depends upon forcing plenty of air through the hay. The air not only carries away the moisture but it also brings in the heat which evaporates moisture from the hay.

The engineers estimate that a fan which will push 15,000 cubic feet of air a minute will be needed to dry long hay piled 10 feet in a 30 by 34-foot mow when the hay contains 35 percent moisture will have twice as much excess water so twice as much air will be required or the depth of the hay should be reduced by half.

Priest Lashes Funds Denial

CLEVELAND, May 24—Government denial of tax funds to parochial schools is an open invitation to totalitarianism.

That was the opinion expressed by the Rev. William E. McManus, assistant director of the department of education of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, in an address yesterday at the final meeting of the Catholic Press Association convention here.

Father McManus, a recognized authority in the field of educational legislation, contended that "when Catholic school administrators demand aid for parochial schools they contribute to preservation of democracy by opposing a view of the relationship of government to education."

The earliest known lighthouses were beacon fires in towers erected in Lower Egypt several hundred years before Christ.

TURF ROLLED BACK TO SHOW JAP BEETLE GRUBS AT WORK

Ammunition for Fighting Japanese Beetles

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

IF YOU have had an encounter with Popillia japonica, the official title of the Japanese beetle, you know from experience what a pesky pest it is.

In the adult stage, the Japanese beetle eats the foliage of nearly every variety of plant or tree it comes into contact with, while in the grub stage the same pest feeds on roots of grass and garden plants below ground, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

The female beetles lay their eggs in the soil, two to six inches deep. When the eggs hatch, the young grubs, illustrated, gorge on decaying vegetation and the roots they find overhead. From the end of June and well into July, the adult beetles emerge from the soil ready to devour the garden.

Plant scientists have come up with various forms of ammunition for fighting Japanese beetles, among them, DDT, Chlordane (also known as 1068) and spore dust. One method of attack is to apply a 5 per cent DDT dust to the lawn at the rate of 10 pounds per 1,000 square feet of space. Doing this before a rain will save one chore; otherwise, the application should be watered into the ground. If liquid application is preferred, one pound of wettable 50 per cent DDT powder is mixed in 10 gallons of water and applied in a sprinkling can or sprayer to every 1,000 square feet of area.

Chlordane, however, is reported to be the fastest working chemical yet found against Japanese beetle grubs in soil, killing 2½ times faster than DDT, or nearly 100 per cent control in a month. This means that turf can be treated in the spring with some hope of reducing grub injury and the adult beetle population that same summer. Milky disease spore dust is reported good for long range control.

Poultry Packs Developed To Aid Producers

Farmers of tomorrow must be poultry merchandisers as well as producers if they are to compete successfully with the new "broiler factories." Progressive poultry raisers must keep attuned to the times if they are to meet the challenge of new developments in the industry.

Within a short time the consumer will have a wide range of selection for poultry and meat products. This will necessitate better merchandising on the part of the individual poultryman.

One of the principal means of meeting this challenge is for the poultry raiser to start selling chickens under brand names in an effort to promote his product for the time when consumers again will be "choosy".

To accomplish this, good packaging is essential. Modern transparent packaging of ready-to-eat poultry will increase sales and profits.

TESTS CONDUCTED with the same grade of poultry, half being sealed in flexible packages, the others without covering, proved that demand for the packaged birds was one to three times as large as for the unwrapped ones.

For packaging, cellophane, transparent regenerated cellulose film or a rubber hydrochloride film are available. They are moisture-proof, air-proof, strong, flexible and resistant to liquid and grease.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Observer

The announcement that King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan and the president of Syria have "eloquently buried their differences" and topped off the love-feast with a "sumptuous repast" has drawn attention to a major factor in Middle East hostilities.

This is the existence of long-standing differences between Arab leaders themselves.

Family warfare and tribal ambitions have been cloaked over to a large degree by apparent unification of the Arab League. While the Arab states may continue banded together in an effort to drive the Jews out of Palestine even such a victory would not eliminate the old differences among them.

Some Jewish observers believe that what Abdullah has termed a "holy war" against Jewry actually is in point of fact nothing but the initial phase in a knockdown-dragout fight. It will determine which of the ruling Arab families will attain dominant power and all the wealth in subsidies and oil production that goes with it.

THEY ARE convinced also that unless a permanent truce can be arranged, the final inter-Arab war will change the whole international picture in the Middle East in a manner deeply affecting British and French colonial and industrial interests.

The collapse of Arab solidarity dates from 1922. In that year King Abdullah's father was driven out of the Hedjaz by the armed forces of Ibn Saud, King of Saudi Arabia.

The Hedjaz contains the two Arab holy cities of Mecca and Medina.

Abdullah never forgave Ibn Saud for depriving his family of these two cities whose possession means more than any other single thing to an Arab ruler from the viewpoint of prestige.

Just what "differences" were buried by Abdullah and the Syrian president are not known. The talks, however, may have dealt to some extent with Abdul-

REBIRTH OF POLAND

DAVID M. Nichol, writing to the Chicago Daily News from Warsaw, asserts that the amount of reconstruction which has been accomplished in the fifteen months since his last visit there is almost unbelievable.

Though years may elapse before the city will be completely rebuilt, great speed and efficiency have been used in clearing away rubble and erecting new buildings. In the outlying districts the farms are prospering and the factories are working full strength toward the rehabilitation of the country, so severely hurt by war.

Nichol says that the people may not like their Communist government, nor altogether approve of its methods, but they have accepted it and are now working for Poland. They are not fleeing from the country, but staying with it to bring about normal conditions of living.

In thus moving with the current instead of spending energy trying to swim upstream, the Poles are making the best of their distasteful situation. Poland has always been a proud, fiercely patriotic nation, which has spent much of its abundant energy in fighting wars. With this energy applied to peaceful, constructive endeavors, productive future is in sight.

HISTORY'S LONGEST

QUEEN Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, who has announced she plans to abdicate, has been reigning for 58 years. Yet hers is not the longest reign in history, or even recent times.

England's George III ruled for 60 years, and Victoria for 64. Francis Joseph of Austria beat them both: he came on the throne in the Revolution of 1848, and died in 1916, in the middle of the first world war. And Francis Joseph was exceeded by Louis XIV, most conspicuous of all French kings, who was monarch from 1643 to 1715, from the age of 5 to 77. Had he lived to extreme instead of merely moderate old age, his record would have been something to shoot at.

Such a record, students of ancient Egyptian history report, was set up by Pepi II, who was king of the land of the Nile in the 26th century B. C. His reign is variously given as 90 years, 94 and 100. This is doubtless the record of all times.

IKE AT COLUMBIA

WHEN Woodrow Wilson stepped from the presidency of Princeton university to the governorship of New Jersey and then, only two years afterward, to the presidency of the United States, he put ideas into the heads of a good many college presidents.

It is safe to say that President-elect Eisenhower of Columbia is not among them. His renewed refusal to be considered for the White House ought to make that clear, even to the most persistent politician.

Eisenhower may not find his Columbia job all roses. Wilson once said that to find the full flower of intrigue, one ought to see a college faculty.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Let us have a look at the "Advisory Nationwide Poll of Daily Newspaper Editors" for the Collier's magazine prizes. The top 10 for first and second choices for the senator who this year provided the most distinguished congressional services shows:

	1st	2nd
Taft .....	113	36
Vandenberg .....	45	35
Byrd .....	21	35
Morse .....	9	7
Barkley .....	6	6
Flanders .....	6	6
Ball .....	5	17
Ferguson .....	5	10
Connally .....	5	3
Ives .....	3	6

Of these 10, the poll shows that seven are Republicans. Although Collier's ignored the newspaper editors' judgment, passing over four names to reach Senator Barkley, the fact remains that the only New Dealer among the 10 is Barkley. Taft received more votes by eight than the remaining nine added together. This is particularly significant because the poll was taken on a nationwide scale, covering all parts of the country and all shades of political opinion.

The fact that the Collier's committee, headed by Eric Johnston, chose to ignore this poll, rejecting Taft, who received 113 votes, and accepting Barkley, who received six votes, is something that requires a better explanation than that the committee had decided to disregard candidates for the presidency. What, even if that is true, is the excuse for disregarding Byrd and Morse, who are not candidates?

Considering the Washington newsmen, editors, broadcasters and columnists, altogether 28 of them, Taft received 12 as first choice, 2 as second, 2 as third; Barkley, 3 as first, 2 as second, 5 as third choice. On the first choice, Taft leads Barkley 4 to 1. But this, too, is ignored by the committee.

If the first 10 senatorial names are studied in the Washington poll, nine out of 10 are Republicans, namely Taft, Flanders, Ives, Tobey, Ferguson, Hickel, Loper, Smith, Vandenberg and White. Only one Democrat appears among the first ten, Barkley, and he got the prize.

This is one of the most amazing showings in all this curious prize business. Taft leads the field among nationwide editors, 113 to Barkley's 6; among Washington newsmen, 12 to 3, but Barkley gets the prize!

James C. Derieux says in Collier's: "The committee does not operate under fixed criteria or rules. Each year it is free to do as it pleases. In selecting the winners for 1947, a number of members felt that it would be wise to eliminate avowed presidential candidates from consideration, lest the award be mistaken for a political endorsement."

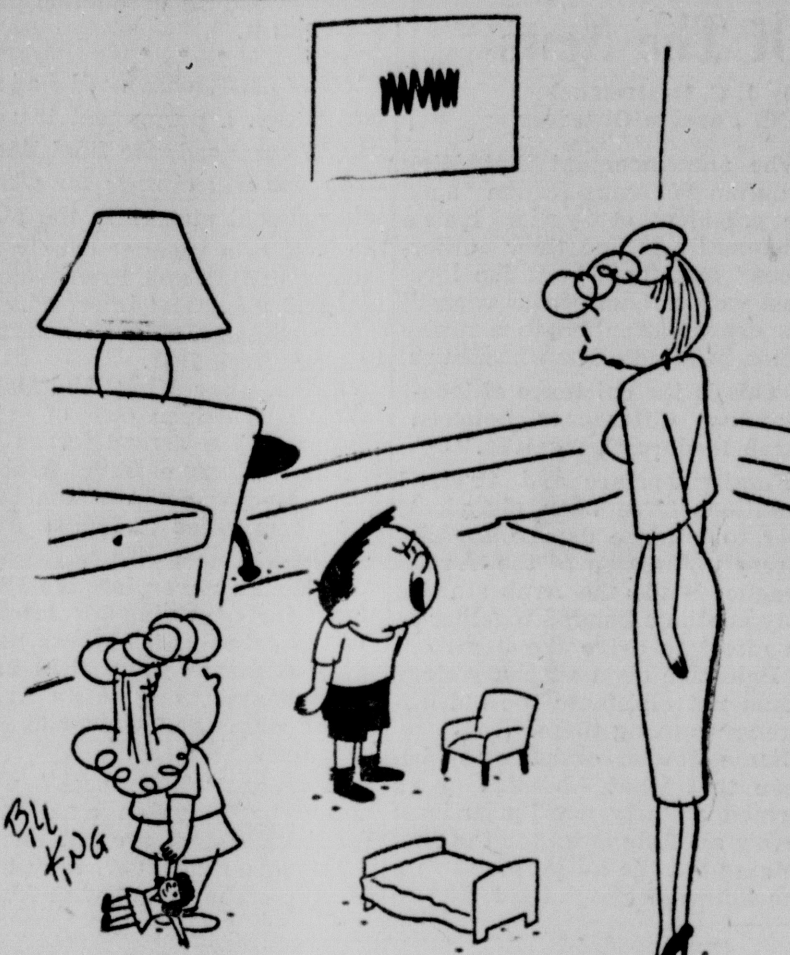

If that is the explanation, it should have been made in advance of taking the polls. The pollees, in that case, would have known that they could not vote for Taft, Vandenberg and Joe Martin. As it stands, many must wonder whether the committee did not reach its conclusion after the vote was in—and Taft came first.

John L. Lewis, it seems, is a much-abused man—his enemies are always trying to put something over on him.

You may laugh at our politicians, but they seem to be our modern heroes as much as anybody.

It's the farmer that keeps the world going—he can sow his oats without going wild over it.

WHAT YOU HOPE MOST

WHEN the auction is about to begin, your first hope should be that one of the opponents will give you a chance for a business double which will penalize them more points than ever could be scored by having your side furnish the declarer. The opportunity for such a double occurs more frequently because of an unwise or unfortunate overcall of the opening bid than through any other development. The first action to be considered by the partner of the opening bidder should therefore be to double the overcall, and he should proceed to make a bid instead only if the double does not appear promising.

South thought very well of himself when he managed to make his game plus an extra trick after West led the club 6. The declarer got one trick in that suit, four in spades, two in hearts and three in diamonds by playing East for every outstanding honor, and the defenders scored nothing except three tricks in clubs.

Then a storm burst from the North, which at first South could not understand.

"Why in blazes didn't you double his 1-No Trump?" demanded South's partner. "We took ten tricks with you as declarer and could easily have done the same with him playing the hand. If we did, we would have set him four tricks at his 1-No Trump, giving us 1,100 points. Even if we misplayed the defense we would have beaten him three tricks positively to score 800, much better than a game score."

North was exactly right. South should have doubled with great glee. He did not have to fear that East had some one solid suit he could run, plus mere diamond stoppers, for South himself had stoppers in every suit, with an original bid hand opposite him.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

HELEN sat quiet, thinking, remembering. That night when she had driven Don into the city believing—hoping—that it marked the beginning of a new epoch in her life. They had had supper at an exclusive little French place in the Fifties. It had cost him a small fortune but he hadn't seemed to mind. Anyway, between his inexplicable but delightful attentiveness to her and the potency of the wine, she had found herself unable to refuse his invitation to visit his apartment later.

Perhaps that had been her mistake, she told herself now. Perhaps she shouldn't have been so ready and willing. But she had believed he was not one to be kept waiting. He could forget too easily, his desire was too casual. Her dark eyes sparkled and a familiar deep inner trembling shook her with her memories.

Well, be that as it may, she had gone, and though his kisses had roused and thrilled her, she had come away with the feeling that no matter how much it meant to her, it had meant little to him. Once again she was the mouse being played with, and all the way home she had gone over and over every moment she had been with him with mingled emotions of disappointment and fear. Because—whatever it meant to him—she herself was helpless before it. She must see him again. But how? If John were to be with her—

She had seen him again—and sooner than she had imagined.

She had reached Stone House after midnight expecting to find the house in darkness. Instead it was ablaze with lights. She had come in, after putting her car away, through the kitchen and had found Alec alone in the living room, stretched out on the davenport, a half-empty decanter and glass on the floor beside him. He lifted his head as she appeared and grinned at her.

"For heaven's sake, what are you doing all alone here?" she had asked.

He had swung his feet to the floor and sat up.

"Welcome home," he had said, and invited her to a chair with a wave of his hand. "I've been betting with myself whether you or John would get back first."

"John! Where is he?"

"In New York. John? Tonight?"

"Alec, what's going on around here?"

"Plenty," he had said, and putting up one hand, he had dramatically checked off the happenings of the day on his fingers.

"One: I've re-enlisted in the Navy. Two: Madame Kingsley had a stroke and lies this moment at the point of death. Three:

Anne finds out I'm married when my wife calls up from Honolulu and she gets to the telephone ahead of me. Four: I try to explain about it to her and John won't give me a chance. He stopped, waiting to see what effect all this news would have.

But Helen had hardly got past his first sentence. Alec had re-enlisted. That meant he wouldn't be here this winter and that meant that John wouldn't be able to go in to the city with her. Excitation, like a small hot fire, raced through her. But she only said, "Where did you say John was?"

"In New York."

"Why did he go there?"

"He drove Anne in. She couldn't shake the dust fast enough. Not that she cared too much about my defection. She certainly didn't look or act heart-broken." He paused. "By the way, between you and me, my dear, I'd keep an eye on those two if I were you."

Helen, still lost in her own thoughts, said, "What two?"

"You're not really that dumb. You must have seen something yourself. Anne and John, of course."

She came to alert attention. "What, exactly, do you mean?"

He shrugged. "Well, he drove her in to the city at six o'clock and it's now two. That's all I know. Make what you will of it. Or don't make anything at all."

She had pretended indifference but she had left him, presently, and gone up to her room to bed. Only not to sleep. She was wide awake when John's car came down the driveway a half hour later and she had been tiptoeing in through the door.

"Turn on the light if you like," she had said.

He had switched it on and she had lain watching him as he undressed, waiting for him to speak. But he did not speak. At last she broke the silence.

"Alec tells me he's married."

"That's right."

"So Anne cleared out."

"Naturally. Her whole reason for staying here was gone."

"Was it?"

He had turned sharply. "What?"

She shook her head, a faint smile on her lips. "Nothing."

There was silence for another moment. Then, "Did you have a hard time finding hotel accommodations for her?"

"Not too hard—"

He had checked himself and come to the foot of her bed. "Are your questions leading anywhere in particular?"

"They might be." She sat up straight and clasped her hands about her knees and spoke with soft clarity. "Shall I tell you where?"

"Please do."

She drew a breath. "Why did it take you seven hours to find hotel accommodations if they weren't hard to find, John?"

"Perhaps you'd better speak more clearly."

She shrugged. "Here's another approach—if you don't understand that one, Alec is married. He's also re-enlisted. That means he won't be staying here this winter. Right?"

"Right."

"So you won't be going in to New York with me, after all."

"Naturally, I can't."

"I realize that. The point is, you can't keep me here just because you aren't going."

For a minute their glances measured each other. Then he said with deliberation, "I don't want to."

"You mean you want me to go?"

He made no reply.

"You mean?"—she persisted—"you would like me to refuse to live with you?"

He took hold of the footboard and held onto it until his knuckles showed white.

"I mean I would like you to give me a divorce," he said quietly.

Ah! Now it was out at last. If she could just manage this right—not letting him go until she was sure of Don—

"Because of Anne?" she asked.

"Yes. Because of Anne."

"You want to marry her?"

"Yes."

"And what about me?"

Her eyes narrowed. She said, "Now I have. But I may not always. Anything can happen to it. Anything can happen to me. Then what?"

He had said stiffly, "I can't pay you much alimony, Helen. You know that."

"Of course I know it. That's why I'm speaking frankly. If I've got to look out for myself—"

Well, I'm going to do it the best way I can. You don't blame me, do you?"

"No."

She looked at him and saw the misery on his face—the desperate, tight, despairing misery—and did not care. She was busy weaving her own plans. "I'm going in to New York for the winter," she told him presently. "I can't see past that. I may come back. I may not. But I don't advise you to try any funny business while I'm gone. If you do, I warn you now I'll start a suit against Anne for alienation of affections. I don't believe you'd like that. Either of you. Would you?"

He had said nothing. He had just turned away and left her.

She had gone the next day. Then had come the frantic hunt for an apartment and her final finding of this one. It had begun fun fixing it up. She had whisked the old, overstuffed furniture, the terrible pictures, the awful rugs that had all been in the living room into the bedroom and had locked the door on it. After that she had set to work to make it a place that suited her. When she got it fixed, she would call Don, she had thought. Don! Everything had centered about Don.

Some Causes of Backache

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THERE are at least 50 different causes of pain in the lower part of the back, maybe more. Thus, the patient who goes to the doctor complaining of backache cannot expect a quick and definite answer as to the cause of his trouble.

It is reassuring to know, however, that in about 90 out of 100 patients the condition causing the backache is not serious. In the other 10 per cent the backache may be a sign of some major ailment and the condition should be carefully studied.

Common Causes

Among the more common causes of backache are inflammation of the muscles of the lower part of the back or of certain of the joints of the spine. It may also be produced by sacroiliac strain. The sacroiliac joint is located between the lower part of the spine and the hip bones.

Many cases of backache are not due to trouble with the back or spine itself but to disorders within the abdomen. Kidney disorders are sometimes responsible for back pain, but not as often as many people think. Inflammation of the tubes or ovaries in women, on the other hand, are more often responsible for backache than is generally realized.

Heat and Massage

In cases of inflammation of the tissues, rest and the application of heat and massage may be all that are required. Sometimes a special brace may be needed to give support to the muscles of the back.

Occasionally the backache may be due to a disorder of the feet. This is not unusual, since foot strain will also lead to some strain on the back muscle. Hence, the wearing of special shoes may be required. It may be necessary to change the way of sitting, walking, or standing in order to get relief.

Repeated Backache

People who have repeated backache or backache which lasts for a long time should, of course, consult a physician for thorough study. X-rays of the spine sometimes help to disclose the location of the trouble.

Remember, however, that it is not always easy to find the cause. It may require several weeks of examination on the part of the physician before he can put his finger on the responsible disorder, but once it is found, in most instances, the trouble can be completely relieved.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. Yes: Can undulant fever be cured? How long does it take?

A. Answer: Recently, good results have been obtained in the treatment of undulant fever by the combined use of streptomycin and the sulfonamide drugs. Cures have been reported with this treatment.

Just how long it will take to produce a cure cannot be stated.

REBIRTH OF POLAND

DAVID M. Nichol, writing to the Chicago Daily News from Warsaw, asserts that the amount of reconstruction which has been accomplished in the fifteen months since his last visit there is almost unbelievable.

Though years may elapse before the city will be completely rebuilt, great speed and efficiency have been used in clearing away rubble and erecting new buildings. In the outlying districts the farms are prospering and the factories are working full strength toward the rehabilitation of the country, so severely hurt by war.

Nichol says that the people may not like their Communist government, nor altogether approve of its methods, but they have accepted it and are now working for Poland. They are not fleeing from the country, but staying with it to bring about normal conditions of living.

In thus moving with the current instead of spending energy trying to swim upstream, the Poles are making the best of their distasteful situation. Poland has always been a proud, fiercely patriotic nation, which has spent much of its abundant energy in fighting wars. With this energy applied to peaceful, constructive endeavors, productive future is in sight.

HISTORY'S LONGEST

QUEEN Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, who has announced she plans to abdicate, has been reigning for 58 years. Yet hers is not the longest reign in history, or even recent times.

England's George III ruled for 60 years, and Victoria for 64. Francis Joseph of Austria beat them both: he came on the throne in the Revolution of 1848, and died in 1916, in the middle of the first world war. And Francis Joseph was succeeded by Louis XIV, most conspicuous of all French kings, who was monarch from 1643 to 1715, from the age of 5 to 77. Had he lived to extreme instead of merely moderate old age, his record would have been something to shoot at.

Such a record, students of ancient Egyptian history report, was set up by Pepi II, who was king of the land of the Nile in the 26th century B. C. His reign is variously given as 90 years, 94 and 100. This is doubtless the record of all times.

IKE AT COLUMBIA

WHEN Woodrow Wilson stepped from the presidency of Princeton university to the governorship of New Jersey and then, only two years afterward, to the presidency of the United States, he put ideas into the heads of a good many college presidents.

It is safe to say that President-elect Eisenhower of Columbia is not among them. His renewed refusal to be considered for the White House ought to make that clear, even to the most persistent politician.

Eisenhower may not find his Columbia job all roses. Wilson once said that to find the full flower of intrigue, one ought to see a college faculty.

These Days

George E. Sokolsky's

Let us have a look at the "Advisory National Poll of Daily Newspaper Editors" for the Collier's magazine prizes. The top 10 for first and second choices for the senator who this year provided the most distinguished congressional services shows:

	1st	2nd
Taft	113	36
Vandenberg	45	35
Byrd	21	35
Morse	9	7
Barkley	6	6
Flanders	6	6
Ball	5	17
Ferguson	5	10
Connally	5	3
Ives	3	6

Of these 10, the poll shows that seven are Republicans. Although Collier's ignored the newspaper editors' judgment, passing over four names to reach Senator Barkley, the fact remains that the only New Dealer among the 10 is Barkley. Taft received more votes by eight than the remaining nine added together. This is particularly significant because the poll was taken on a nationwide scale, covering all parts of the country and all shades of political opinion.

The fact that the Collier's committee, headed by Eric Johnston, chose to ignore this poll, rejecting Taft, who received 113 votes, and accepting Barkley, who received six votes, is something that requires a better explanation than that the committee had decided to disregard candidates for the presidency. What, even if that is true, is the excuse for disregarding Byrd and Morse, who are not candidates?

Considering the Washington newsmen, editors, broadcasters and columnists, altogether 28 of them, Taft received 12 as first choice, 2 as second, 2 as third; Barkley, 3 as first, 2 as second, 5 as third choice. On the first choice, Taft leads Barkley 4 to 1. But this, too, is ignored by the committee.

If the first 10 senatorial names are studied in the Washington poll, nine out of 10 are Republicans, namely Taft, Flanders, Ives, Tobey, Ferguson, Hickman, Smith, Vandenberg and White. Only one Democrat appears among the first ten, Barkley, and he got the prize.

This is one of the most amazing showings in all this curious prize business. Taft leads the field among nationwide editors, 113 to Barkley's 6; among Washington newsmen, 12 to 3, but Barkley gets the prize!

James C. Derieux says in Collier's: "The committee does not operate under fixed criteria or rules. Each year it is free to do as it pleases. In selecting the winners for 1947, a number of members felt that it would be wise to eliminate avowed presidential candidates from consideration, lest the award be mistaken for a political endorsement."

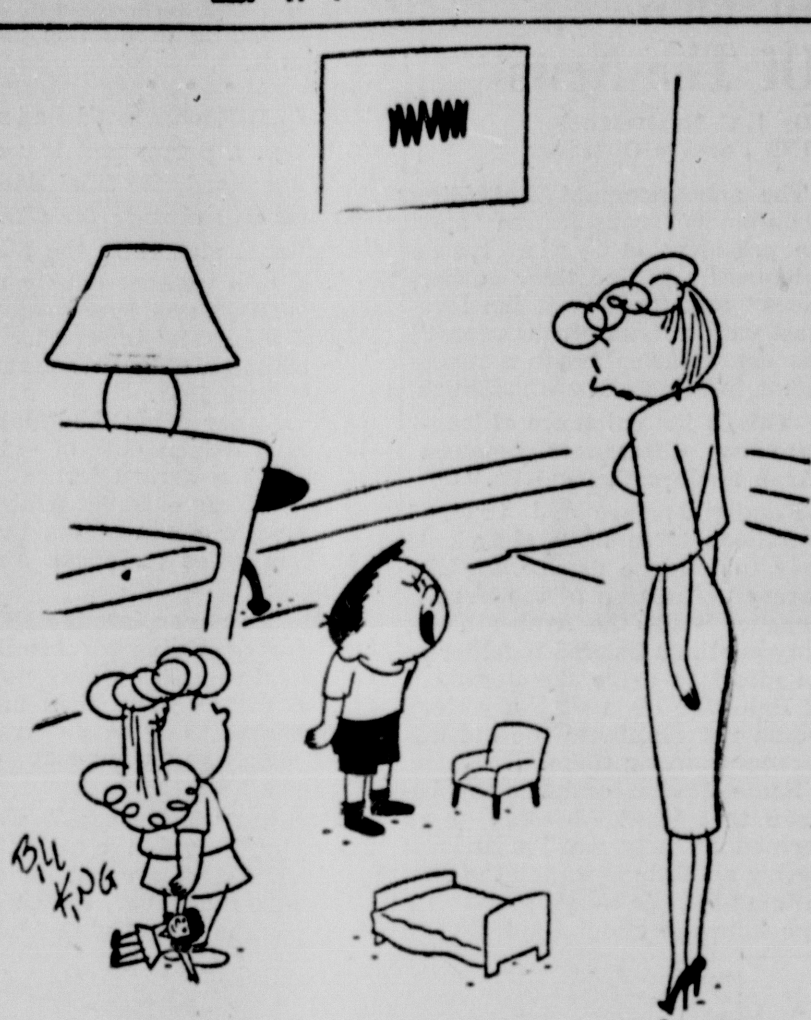

If that is the explanation, it should have been made in advance of taking the polls. The pollees, in that case, would have known that they could not vote for Taft, Vandenberg and Joe Martin. As it stands, many must wonder whether the committee did not reach its conclusion after the vote was in—and Taft came first.

John L. Lewis, it seems, is a much-abused man—his enemies are always trying to put something over on him.

You may laugh at our politicians, but they seem to be our modern heroes as much as anybody.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

HELEN sat quiet, thinking, remembering.

That night when she had driven Don into the city believing—hoping—that it marked the beginning of a new epoch in her life. They had had supper at an exclusive Little French place in the Fifties. It had cost him a small fortune but he hadn't seemed to mind. Anyway, between his inexpressible but delightful attentiveness to her and the potency of the wine, she had found herself unable to refuse his invitation to visit his apartment later.

Perhaps that had been her mistake, she told herself now. Perhaps she shouldn't have been so ready and willing. But she had believed he was not one to be kept waiting. He could forget too easily, his desire was too casual. Her dark eyes sparkled and a familiar deep inner trembling shook her with her memories.

Well, be that as it may, she had gone, and though his kisses had roused and thrilled her, she had come away with the feeling that no matter how much it meant to her, it had meant little to him. Once again she was the mouse being played with, and all the way home she had gone over and over every moment she had been with him with mingled emotions of disappointment and fear. Because—whatever it meant to him—she herself was helpless before it. She must see him again. But how? If John were to be with her—

She had seen him again—and sooner than she had imagined.

She had reached Stone House after midnight expecting to find the house in darkness. Instead it was ablaze with lights. She had come in, after putting her car away, through the kitchen and had found Alec alone in the living room, stretched out on the davenport, a half-empty decanter and glass on the floor beside him. He lifted his head as she appeared and grinned at her.

"For heaven's sake, what are you doing all alone here?" she had asked.

He had swung his feet to the floor and sat up.

"Welcome home," he had said, and invited her to a chair with a wave of his hand. "I've been betting with myself whether you or John would get back first."

"John! Where is he?"

"In New York."

"In New York! John? Tonight?"

"No, I'm not," he had assured her, reading her mind.

"Alec, what's going on around here?"

"Plenty," he had said, and putting up one hand, he had dramatically checked off the happenings of the day on his fingers.

"One: I've re-enlisted in the Navy. Two: Madame Kingsley had a stroke and lies this moment at the point of death. Three:

Another Industry Shutdown Threatened by Coal Issue

Believe Congress Campaign On UN Veto Power Halted

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The pledge of the nation's steelworkers to stay at work despite Big Steel's refusal of a pay boost does not remove the threat of a crippling shutdown this year in that all-important industry.

The joker in the situation is the expiration of the United Mine Workers' contract on June 30. UMW Chief John L. Lewis has notified the mine owners that he wants a new contract.

If Lewis and the operators cannot negotiate a successful work contract by June 30, the miners, under their "no contract, no work" policy, doubtless will stay out of the pits. This would result in almost-complete shutdown of the steel industry in about a month, based on experience during the 29-day coal mine strike ended recently. Steel just can't be made without coal.

Lewis is expected to demand wage boosts, larger pension royalties and other benefits. The operators are expected to buck vigorously. Big Steel may be forced into the uncomfortable position of pushing the mine operators to grant the diggers' demands, despite its own refusal of pay increases.

BALK DRIVE ON VETO—Congressional leadership is confident that Secretary of State George C. Marshall and UN Delegate Warren Austin have stopped a bi-partisan attempt on Capitol Hill to curtail drastically the veto power in the UN Security Council.

Sixteen senators and representatives banded together in an effort to obtain a congressional resolution urging the United Nations to take steps in this direction with or without the co-operation of Russia.

Marshall maintained that any such move would surely split the United Nations and would worsen international relations rather than improve them.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg and many foreign policy leaders in the House take a similar position, but have not been outspoken. They recognize the popular appeal in any move to restrict the veto, which has been so abused by the Soviet Union.

Now, however, with the administration willing to take public responsibility for opposing the anti-veto resolution, the leadership feels it can let the effort die in committees without having to bear public criticism for tacitly approving a situation in the UN which it has publicly condemned.

UNDER THE OLEO—There was not a peep about it in open Senate debate, but the fight over which committee was to handle the House-passed oleo tax repeal bill really had to do with the long-range farm program bill.

Northern farm-state senators wanted control of the oleo bill so they could use it for "coercion" purposes—to get cotton and tobacco senators in line with their plan to scrap the parity price formula and use a 10-year "moving average" base.

Southern senators have been no more than lukewarm to the proposed change. They are not so sure that the 1910-14 formula would not be better for their areas.

If the dairy-state senators, headed by Senator George D. Aiken (R), Vermont, could have got the oleo bill before the agriculture committee, they could have dictated when it would reach the Senate floor—and they could have delivered an ultimatum to southerners to support the farm program if they wanted an oleo bill.

Do Your Tanning In Easy Stages To Avoid Burns

In the modern trend to "bare yourself to the sun," beauty experts say women are pondering "to tan or not to tan." They add:

You might as well decide right now whether you desire to be a nutty-brown maid or retain the fair complexion throughout the Summer season. It is a sad mistake to take on a leather-like finish, as any medical man will tell you. Tanning to excess, year after year, will make the skin heavy and coarse. So, go easy. Take your sunlight in small doses.

Get your sun tan oil, be ready for the swimming season which will be upon us in a hurry now. Flirt with the sun to your heart's content. Be an out-of-doors girl, but don't forget that, while sunlight peeps up like all get out, it bodes no good by your complexion. The day of the sun worshipper, when every girl wanted to get a complexion of dark mahogany, is past.

The first exposure to strong sunlight should not exceed five or ten minutes. Every day the period can be lengthened, the skin will be accustomed to the warm rays. But, even so, have your facial coating lubricated. You will get the vitamin benefits without losing your face. Never should you permit sunburn to torment you. It is like any other burn, can cause infections, pain and discomfort. The effect upon the epidermal structure is devastating.

They say, never use soap and water before exposure to strong sunlight; never use it immediately afterwards.

The skin never regains its delicate, transparent quality after repeated exposure to sunburn. Keeping to periods of brief exposure there will be neither sunburn nor tan, just a pleasing golden tone.

Don't forget to wear dark glasses. Squinting courts turkey tracks.

Do Your Tanning In Easy Stages To Avoid Burns

In the modern trend to "bare yourself to the sun," beauty experts say women are pondering "to tan or not to tan." They add:

You might as well decide right now whether you desire to be a nutty-brown maid or retain the fair complexion throughout the Summer season. It is a sad mistake to take on a leather-like finish, as any medical man will tell you. Tanning to excess, year after year, will make the skin heavy and coarse. So, go easy. Take your sunlight in small doses.

Get your sun tan oil, be ready for the swimming season which will be upon us in a hurry now. Flirt with the sun to your heart's content. Be an out-of-doors girl, but don't forget that, while sunlight peeps you up like all get out, it bodes no good by your complexion. The day of the sun worshipper, when every girl wanted to get a complexion of dark mahogany, is past.

The first exposure to strong sunlight should not exceed five or ten minutes. Every day the period can be lengthened, the skin will be accustomed to the warm rays. But, even so, have your facial coating lubricated. You will get the vitamin benefits without losing your face. Never should you permit sunburn to torment you. It is like any other burn, can cause infections, pain and discomfort. The effect upon the epidermal structure is devastating.

They say, never use soap and water before exposure to strong sunlight; never use it immediately afterwards.

The skin never regains its delicate, transparent quality after repeated exposure to sunburn. Keeping to periods of brief exposure there will be neither sunburn nor tan, just a pleasing golden tone.

Don't forget to wear dark glasses. Squinting courts turkey tracks.

Many Ohio Cows Said Loafers

Milk Production Figures Cited

COLUMBUS, May 24 — Average milk production per cow in Ohio in 1947 was only a little more than 5,000 pounds for the 12 months, which R. R. Starbuck, specialist in dairy husbandry, claims indicates there are thousands of herds which produce less than 4,000 pounds of milk a year because it takes a lot of loafers to pull down to average levels the high production records of hundreds of good herds.

Price studies made by C. F. Christian, specialist in farm marketing, show that the owner of the 4,000-pound per cow herd, had a total income of about $175 from each cow in 1947 if he sold whole milk on any of 21 Ohio markets in 1947.

The owner of a 12,000-pound herd took in about $520 per cow for milk sold on the same markets the same year.

Starbuck says there is no system of feeding which will make a difference of 8,000 pounds of milk in average annual production per cow. Cows which are unable to produce more than 4,000 pounds of milk with ordinary farm feeding never can be made to produce 12,000 pounds of milk. The only way to improve average production much in 4,000-pound herds is to change the cows.

MOST OHIO farmers cannot sell an entire dairy herd and buy replacements for them immediately, but Starbuck says it is possible for any Ohio milk producer to improve his herd by obtaining heifers which are better than their mothers. Milk production is an inheritable factor, and a herd sire can transmit to his daughters productive ability obtained from his dams and granddams.

Most Ohio dairymen now can have heifers sired by excellent bulls by becoming a member of one of Ohio's artificial dairy herd insemination associations. Each of the members is part owner of a ring of herd sires which no one member could afford to own as an individual. The first 1,427 artificial insemination Holstein heifers in New York which were tested for production had average records of 424 pounds of fat, which would indicate they produced 10,000 or more pounds of milk a year.

Wife, 2 Sons Slain By Man Who Ends Life

DAYTON, May 24 — Preliminary investigation showed today that William O. Stump, 37, beat his wife and their two sons, Harry, 12, and Dale, 10, to death early Sunday, set fire to their home, then killed himself with a shotgun.

Deputy Sheriff Otis Crane reported Mrs. Stump and the boys were beaten to death with a baseball bat and that Stump died of a shotgun blast.

Coroner A. P. McDonald agreed with Crane on the basis of early evidence but withheld an official verdict pending the outcome of an autopsy on Stump's body.

He said Dale apparently was killed as he slept but that Harry's arms were badly bruised, indicating he had tried to defend himself. Mrs. Stump's body indicated she offered no resistance. McDonald added that all four bodies were burned slightly.

AUTHORITIES said the shotgun was found near Stump's body and a sprinkling can partially filled with fuel oil was nearby.

The discovery was made by James Rust, truck driver for The Dayton News, who was leaving a load of papers for the Stump boys to deliver. He said he knocked on the door when he saw smoke, then looked through a window and saw the bodies.

Dr. Howard Campbell, a Dayton psychiatrist told police he recommended "five or six times" that Stump be committed as a dangerous paranoiac.

However, he added that Mrs. Stump always refused at the last minute to sign the papers necessary under Ohio law.

3 Men Held In Akron Slaying

AKRON, May 24—Summit County authorities grilled three suspects today in connection with the murder of Edward S. Skowronski, about 50, found shot through the head four times.

Skowronski's body was discovered yesterday by two hikers in a thicket of poison ivy near Brandywine Falls, close to the Summit-Cuyahoga county line.

The suspects, two men and a woman, were picked up for questioning by sheriff's deputies when they were found near Skowronski's rooming house.

Chief Deputy Ray Woodard said a lipstick-stained handkerchief found in the dead man's pocket indicated a woman was involved in the slaying. Woodard added Skowronski had been "having some trouble over a woman."

Many Ohio Cows Said Loafers

Milk Production Figures Cited

COLUMBUS, May 24 — Average milk production per cow in Ohio in 1947 was only a little more than 5,000 pounds for the 12 months, which R. R. Starbuck, specialist in dairy husbandry, claims indicates there are thousands of herds which produce less than 4,000 pounds of milk a year because it takes a lot of loafers to pull down to average levels the high production records of hundreds of good herds.

Price studies made by C. F. Christian, specialist in farm marketing, show that the owner of the 4,000-pound cow herd, had a total income of about $175 from each cow in 1947 if he sold whole milk on any one of 21 Ohio markets in 1947.

The owner of a 12,000-pound herd took in about $520 per cow for milk sold on the same markets the same year.

Starbuck says there is no system of feeding which will make a difference of 8,000 pounds of milk in average annual production per cow. Cows which are unable to produce more than 4,000 pounds of milk with ordinary farm feeding never can be made to produce 12,000 pounds of milk. The only way to improve average production much in 4,000-pound herds is to change the cows.

MOST OHIO farmers cannot sell an entire dairy herd and buy replacements for them immediately, but Starbuck says it is possible for any Ohio milk producer to improve his herd by obtaining heifers which are better than their mothers. Milk production is an inheritable factor, and a herd sire can transmit to his daughters productive ability obtained from his dams and granddams.

Most Ohio dairymen now can have heifers sired by excellent bulls by becoming a member of one of Ohio's artificial dairy herd insemination associations. Each of the members is part owner of a ring of herd sires which no one member could afford to own as an individual. The first 1,427 artificial insemination Holstein heifers in New York which were tested for production had average records of 424 pounds of fat, which would indicate they produced 10,000 or more pounds of milk a year.

Wife, 2 Sons Slain By Man Who Ends Life

DAYTON, May 24 — Preliminary investigation showed today that William O. Stump, 37, beat his wife and their two sons, Harry, 12, and Dale, 10, to death early Sunday, set fire to their home, then killed himself with a shotgun.

Deputy Sheriff Otis Crane reported Mrs. Stump and the boys were beaten to death with a baseball bat and that Stump died of a shotgun blast.

Coroner A. P. McDonald agreed with Crane on the basis of early evidence but withheld an official verdict pending the outcome of an autopsy on Stump's body.

He said Dale apparently was killed as he slept but that Harry's arms were badly bruised, indicating he had tried to defend himself. Mrs. Stump's body indicated she offered no resistance. McDonald added that all four bodies were burned slightly.

AUTHORITIES said the shotgun was found near Stump's body and a sprinkling can partially filled with fuel oil was nearby.

The discovery was made by James Rust, truck driver for The Dayton News, who was leaving a load of papers for the Stump boys to deliver. He said he knocked on the door when he saw smoke, then looked through a window and saw the bodies.

Dr. Howard Campbell, a Dayton psychiatrist told police he recommended "five or six times" that Stump be committed as a dangerous paranoiac.

However, he added that Mrs. Stump always refused at the last minute to sign the papers necessary under Ohio law.

EXPERT NEEDS HELP, TOO

Even Your Psychiatrist May Have Schizophrenia

By KENNETH L. DIXON
WASHINGTON, May 24—Relax, gentle reader, relax. Just ease back on that couch and take your mind off your personal worries. Things may not be nearly as bad as you think.

After all, even your psychiatrist may have schizophrenia, too!

Naturally, that idea will come as a shock to you, if you've been placing your mental problems on his shoulders for all these weeks, months or years. Somehow, you've probably come to consider him as a person immune to the trials and tribulations of ordinary worldly, workaday life.

But it just ain't so, chum. It just ain't so.

Psychiatrists, it becomes our regretful duty to report, are just like human beings—only maybe more so.

Some of them are Republicans and some of them are Democrats. Some of them even are in favor of Henry Wallace. If you see anything psychiatric in that, please refrain from making bright remarks at the moment.

Some of them believe that the future of psychiatry lies in the hands of the American Medical Association, and some of them believe that the AMA spells only trouble for the psychiatric set.

Furthermore, they're quite willing to fight over such issues.

NOW ALL OF these deductions are arrived at after approximately a week of watching the American Psychiatric Association go through its annual convention antics here in Washington. Believe me, it has been an interesting situation. Already the symptoms have disclosed several cases of obvious schizophrenia—but more of that later.

To begin with, it should be stated that, at a convention, psychiatrists act just like people. That conclusion will not be either documented herewith or discussed in detail, since there is no intent whatever to cause trouble back home for visiting psychiatrists.

It merely is mentioned to point out that the boys kick the gong around at a convention just like anybody else—and if they go home with guilt on their consciences, presumably they'll

Diplomats Silent On Code Report

WASHINGTON, May 24—The State department had "no comment" today on Drew Pearson's statement that the most important development in the desertion of Sgt. James McMillin from the American embassy in Moscow was the loss of America's top secret code.

The radio commentator claimed that McMillin took the code when he allegedly renounced his American citizenship for a Russian girl.

Pearson said McMillin's action "means that our secret code has to be changed immediately all over the world."

Washington sources said that the department uses a number of secret codes and that these are changed at irregular intervals as a precautionary measure.

Coal Walkout Threat Hikes Steel Demand

CLEVELAND, May 24—Magazine Steel reported today that the threat of another coal strike is serving to intensify demand for steel.

The national metalworking trade publication declared supplies "are unbalanced to an alarming degree." The magazine added:

"One cause for this is the off-grade heats of steel resulting from use of poor quality coal which the mills were forced to take in during the coal strike."

"Buyers are taking every pound of metal they can get their hands on. For example, though its plants are down, Chrysler continues to take tonnage shipments from the mills, and General Motors is making standby agreements to store tonnage at various points in event its plants should be closed by strike."

Steel declared, however, that should paralysis at Chrysler spread to General Motors, and then on to an increasing number of accessory manufacturers, "it appears likely substantial steel

EXPERT NEEDS HELP, TOO

Even Your Psychiatrist May Have Schizophrenia

By KENNETH L. DIXON
WASHINGTON, May 24—Relax, gentle reader, relax. Just ease back on that couch and take your mind off your personal worries. Things may not be nearly as bad as you think.
After all, even your psychiatrist may have schizophrenia, too!
Naturally, that idea will come as a shock to you, if you've been placing your mental problems on his shoulders for all these weeks, months or years. Somehow, you've probably come to consider him as a person immune to the trials and tribulations of ordinary worldly, workaday life.
But it just ain't so, chum. It just ain't so.
Psychiatrists, it becomes our regretful duty to report, are just like human beings—only maybe more so.
Some of them are Republicans and some of them are Democrats. Some of them even are in favor of Henry Wallace. If you see anything psychiatric in that, please refrain from making bright remarks at the moment.
Some of them believe that the future of psychiatry lies in the hands of the American Medical Association, and some of them believe that the AMA spells only trouble for the psychiatric set.
Furthermore, they're quite willing to fight over such issues.
...
NOW ALL OF these deductions are arrived at after approximately a week of watching the American Psychiatric Association go through its annual convention antics here in Washington. Believe me, it has been an interesting situation. Already the symptoms have disclosed several cases of obvious schizophrenia—but more of that later.
To begin with, it should be stated that, at a convention, psychiatrists act just like people. That conclusion will not be either documented herewith or discussed in detail, since there is no intent whatever to cause trouble back home for visiting psychiatrists.
It merely is mentioned to point out that the boys kick the gong around at a convention just like anybody else—and if they go home with guilt on their consciences, presumably they'll

Diplomats Silent On Code Report

WASHINGTON, May 24—The State department had "no comment" today on Drew Pearson's statement that the most important development in the desertion of Sgt. James McMillin from the American embassy in Moscow was the loss of America's top secret code.
The radio commentator claimed that McMillin took the code when he allegedly renounced his American citizenship for a Russian girl.
Pearson said McMillin's action "means that our secret code has to be changed immediately all over the world."
Washington sources said that the department uses a number of secret codes and that these are changed at irregular intervals as a precautionary measure.

have to turn on the recording machines and confide in themselves.

Hardly had the tell-me-your-troubles experts gathered here when the head of a local institution noted for its accommodation of the straitjacket set came up with a suggestion that the nation's 5,000-odd psychiatrists should develop a definite code of ethics.

It seemed that they'd been operating under a sort of patronage code borrowed from the AMA all these years, and he thought they ought to strike out on their own.

Well, now, that would seem like a simple situation to a normal citizen, but you'd be surprised how these psychiatrists bickered and battled over it. Some of them thought that some of the others were motivated in their viewpoints by theories which originated elsewhere and didn't really represent their honest personal opinions—if you follow me.

Also, there was the clear-cut implication that if they'd let their subconscious speak, the whole thing would be settled—and the things those guys said about one another, ethically speaking!

However, once that opening point was settled, the psychiatrists entered wholeheartedly into the business of the convention, which culminated, of course, in the selection of officers for the coming year.

AND THAT, as the saying goes, was when the soup hit the fan!

By custom of semi-tradition, it seemed that one man was slated to be named the president-elect. But, according to the statements which subsequently were made on the convention floor, it developed that he had definite leanings toward "psychosurgery and lobotomy."

In effect, that would mean that he belonged to the school of thought which stressed the use of the knife on the brain as the solution to many psychiatric problems.

Many psychiatrists do not belong to that school, despite the recent strides of lobotomy in the matter of slicing off the anti-social inclinations of certain citizens. It is not that they seek to debunk such brain-surgery progress, but rather that they feel that psychiatry should not be dominated by psychosurgery. At least, that's what they said.

Anyhow, the convention deteriorated into a definite split over who was to be the next president—a clear case of mass schizophrenia.

Which should make you relax at least somewhat, since it shows that your psychiatrist is just like you, if not more so.

Who finally won the election? Hah! Look, chum, I'm not going to practice without a license. Go see your psychiatrist!

Doe Found Dead In Disposal Lake

CLEVELAND, May 24—A 150-pound doe met a watery death yesterday at the Cleveland sewage disposal plant on the city's east side.

Dillard To Try For 73rd Win
CLEVELAND, May 24—Harrison Dillard, fleet Baldwin-Wallace hurdles star, will attempt to extend his victory string to 73 Friday in the 45th Annual Ohio Conference Track Carnival at Ohio Wesleyan.

A victory for Baldwin-Wallace would give them their fifth straight Ohio crown.

Dillard hiked his victory chain to 70 Saturday with three victories against Michigan Normal. Garion Campbell, collegiate sprint ace who was expected to give Dillard a tough battle in the 100-yard dash, did not make the trip because of a leg injury.

Amazing Birds Take Second Place In AA
By International News Service

The Columbus Red Birds, who were close to scraping bottom in the American Association only a month ago, are in second place today and still going strong.

The amazing Birds ran their winning streak to eight straight games yesterday as they took a double header from Milwaukee, 9 to 5 and 10 to 4.

Columbus slapped the Brewers' two best hurlers, Al Epperly and Glenn Elliott, around as they clubbed out 27 hits in the two games. Meanwhile, Charley Stanceu and Clarence Beers, the latter just down from the St. Louis Cardinals, pitched effectively for the Birds.

The double triumph put the Birds 2½ games behind league leading St. Paul. Indianapolis is only two games behind the Saints, but the Tribe is three percentage points short of Columbus.

St. Paul defeated Toledo twice, 11 to 3 and 2 to 1. Kansas City snapped a four-game Indianapolis winning streak, taking the Indians twice, 9 to 2 and 3 to 1. The Blues escaped the league cellar as Louisville split a bargain bill with Minneapolis.

The Colonels took the first contest, 6 to 2, but dropped the nightcap, 15 to 5, to fall a half game behind Kansas City.

High Schooler Eyed By Reds
TWIN FALLS, Ida., May 24—Bobby Long, sensational Twin Falls high school pitcher, said he would sign a contract today with either Cincinnati or Pittsburgh and added "it will probably be with the Reds."

Long has pitched three no-hit games this year along with four one-hit contests. In his junior year he also turned in one no-hitter.

The 17-year-old hurler said that Bob Mattick of the Reds would arrive today, but declined to verify or deny reports that the Reds had offered him $10,000.

Ashville Reds Still Winning; Washington Falls

The Ashville Reds chalked up its second South Central Ohio Baseball League win in as many starts Sunday afternoon by edging the Washington Eagles in the last frame, 5-4.

With Sunday's win, the Reds stand tied in the league with Greenfield, which won its Sunday game over Jamestown.

Each team has won two and lost none for a perfect 1.000 percent in league play this season.

In Sunday's Ashville game, the Reds broke into the scoring column first in its half of the second inning, pushing over one run to lead the ball game.

The Eagles retaliated in the next frame, however, scoring four runs to hold a 4-1 margin. The Reds tied the game up in the bottom of the fifth by scoring three.

Hospital Group Waging Battle On Chronic Diseases

3 Clinics In Ohio Top Proposals

Death Statistics Given In Report

The Ohio Hospital Plan is embarking upon an extensive venture in combatting chronic diseases by giving full consideration to prevention, research, treatment and rehabilitation of stricken patients.

In Ohio alone, 68 percent of all deaths of residents during 1946, excluding those from tuberculosis and mental disease, was due to some other form of chronic disease, medical authorities point out.

Of these deaths, heart ailments paced the field accounting for 31 percent, and cancer for 14 percent.

A chronic disease is described as a long-term illness which requires continued care or treatment over long periods of time wherein the likelihood of substantial improvement is delayed, if it occurs at all.

STATISTICS prove chronic disease affects nearly every family and strikes all levels without heed of age, location or economic resources. Medical authorities say the growing importance of the problem is emphasized by the increased span of life and the decline in the birth rate.

The Ohio Hospital Plan proposes construction of three chronic disease hospitals in medical teaching centers in Ohio to function as an integral part of the teaching center and provide instruction in the care of chronic disease patients.

To place treatment on a statewide basis, the plan also will approve of the construction of chronic disease units in large general hospitals.

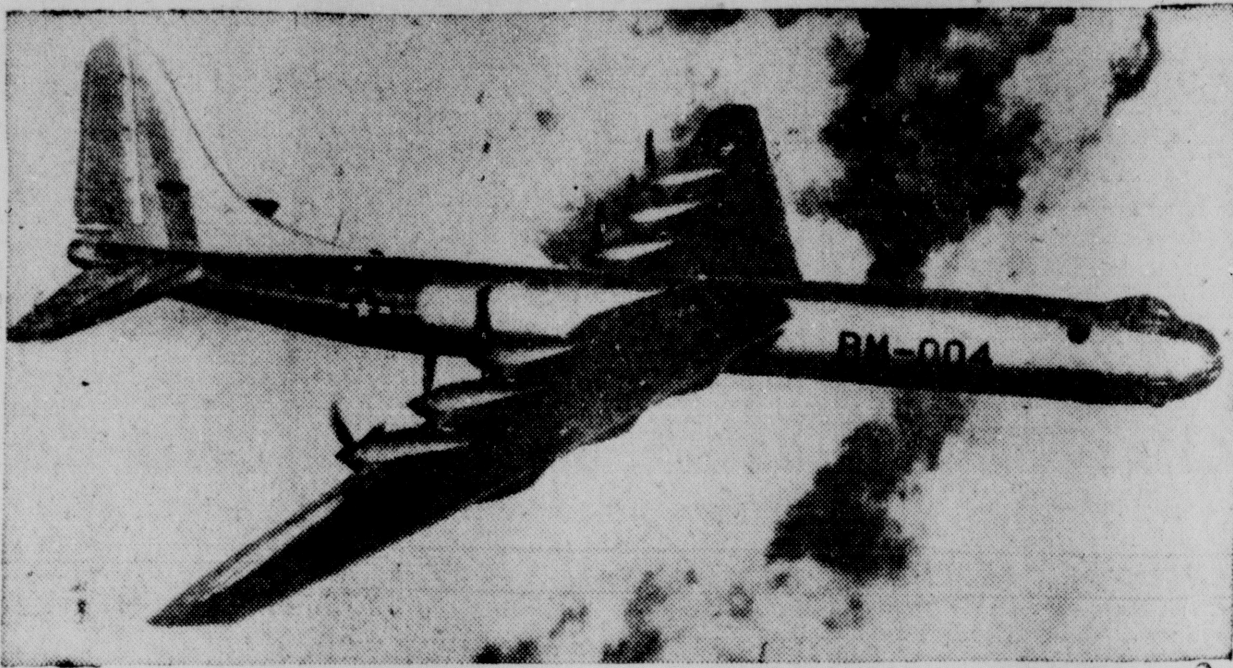

This addition, experts say, would avoid duplication of expensive hospital facilities, make available a larger and more diversified medical staff, facilitate the transfer from chronic units to acute clinics, and provide flexibility in hospital planning.

Under the present state ratio for chronic disease patients, two beds are allowed per thousand population or 14,998 beds in Ohio. Planners say, discounting chronic disease units of 10 beds or less in general hospitals, Ohio now has 609 beds for chronic disease, all of which are considered non-acceptable.

The initial outline under the Ohio plan calls for 25 percent of the total allowable beds which may be constructed. On this basis, Ohio's beds for chronics would be raised to 3,658 made immediately available. These will be assigned on the basis of population expected to be served.

THE MAJORITY of hospital beds for chronic disease care in Ohio is considered non-acceptable because of fire hazard or other structural unsuitability. Accordingly, the existing facilities in Ohio are considered negligible.

Authorities say a conservative estimate would place about 25 million persons in the United

Condemned Man Pleads For Kin

CINCINNATI, May 24—Twenty-one-year-old Elmer Curnutt of Otas, Ky., sentenced to die for the Dec. 2 slaying of a Cincinnati tavern keeper, Thomas Wilson, sought today to save his uncle from a similar fate.

Curnutt testified in criminal court yesterday as attorneys sought a new trial for the uncle, Ova B. Cornett, 46.

The youth repudiated an earlier statement that his uncle planned the holdup in which Wilson, an 80-year-old cripple, was fatally stabbed. It was on Curnutt's earlier testimony that Cornett was convicted.

Curnutt is slated to be electrocuted May 27, and his uncle is to die July 15.

Special Session Held Doubtful

CLEVELAND, May 24—Ohio cities seeking a special session of the general assembly on state aid for cities apparently will meet with little support from Gov. Thomas J. Herbert.

Herbert indicated last night that there is little likelihood of action being taken on a plea for financial help sent out by the Ohio Association of Cities which met in Youngstown Thursday.

The governor pointed out that many steps were taken by the legislature for local government. He recalled that the legislature abandoned the admissions tax field in favor of municipalities and took other steps for the financial aid of local government.

100 Employees To Be Laid Off

YOUNGSTOWN, May 24—More than 100 Youngstown city employees will be out of work May 31.

A three-judge Mahoning County common pleas court panel ruled yesterday that Mayor Charles P. Henderson has the authority to lay off policemen, firemen and other city employees for economy reasons.

The ruling affects 52 policemen, 49 firemen and 27 other city employees. Councilmen had argued that the mayor had no authority to fire workers until the present budget appropriation expires July 1. The slash was ordered following defeat of a 2.5-mill operating levy at the polls May 4.

Girl, 17, Dies Of Bullet Wound

NEWARK, May 24—Betty Stevens, 17, whose sweetheart accidentally shot her in the abdomen at a Buckeye Lake park shooting gallery May 15, died last night in Newark City hospital.

Sheriff's deputies said the .22 calibre rifle was discharged accidentally when Robert Lehman, 20, returned to reload it. He said he had been firing for some time and thought the gun was empty.

The girl's fiancé, a sailor home on leave, was not held. They were to have been married this Summer.

78,631 Loans Given Ohio Vets Since War II

World War II veterans in Ohio have negotiated 78,631 home, farm and business loans totaling $467,063,699 under the loan guaranty provisions of the GI Bill of Rights, James P. Shea, Pickaway County veterans service officer, reported Monday.

Home loans have accounted for 93 per cent of the total, he said. The actual loans are made by lending institutions and not by the Veterans Administration. The VA, however, will guarantee up to $4,000 on real estate loans or up to $2,000 on non-real estate loans, but not to exceed 50 percent of the total loan.

Guaranteed loans on business realty and homes must be repaid within 25 years, and within 40 years on farm property. The payments on non-real estate loans must be arranged so as to

The Importance of "Stepping Down"

Here is the story of a new principle of design that has rocked the industry and given Hudson unique beauty not possible in any other type of car.

Hudson has a new, all steel Monobilt body-and-frame*, part of which is a rugged base structure that permits lowering floors and seats down within the frame. The sketches below illustrate this design problem and show how Hudson's recessed floor provides a low, streamlined silhouette, yet preserves head room.

NEW HUDSON

Here is the long, low, gracefully streamlined Hudson—only five feet from ground to top. You can see how the streamlined roof comes down sharply over the rear-seat portion of the car, as compared to the other types of roof lines shown in sketches to the left. But Hudson floors are recessed down within the frame, seats are lowered, so you get more than ample head room.

The "step-down" principle requires years of engineering work, the development of new production techniques and equipment, and millions of dollars of highly specialized new plant investment. Perhaps this explains why Hudson alone offers this vital new design principle today.

You'll probably expect the motor car that is the talk of the nation to offer you even more than beauty and comfort. And it does! Your nearby Hudson dealer will show you The Importance of "Stepping Down"—also its results in riding and driving ease, performance and safety. Hudson Motor Car Company, Detroit 14.

THE recessed floor in the new Hudson—now widely known as the "step-down" feature—is the talk of the automobile world. And rightly so! This interesting development is the key to a new kind of motor-car beauty never before obtainable.

People everywhere are attracted by Hudson's low, streamlined silhouette and free-flowing lines.

Only Hudson, because of its exclusive recessed floor that you step down onto, is able to offer streamlined, low-built beauty without asking you to give up interior head room.

Let's take a frank look at the motor-car designer's problem. Since streamlining an automobile reduces available head room for rear-seat passengers, to achieve a low silhouette and maintain adequate head room, both floor and seats must be lowered to compensate for the lowered roof. The recessed floor is a necessity.

But it is difficult to lower floors and seats, because in all cars, except Hudson, they are built on top of a frame. Only

OTHER CARS

The car above cannot be streamlined because the need for head room above the rear seat (which is built on top of a frame) makes it impossible to lower the roof.

OTHER CARS

Of course, it is possible to adopt free-flowing lines without recessing the floor, as sketched in the car above, but overall height must be raised, and this destroys the possibility of a low silhouette, which is the mark of the modern motor car.

Death Statistics Given In Report

The Ohio Hospital Plan is embarking upon an extensive venture in combating chronic diseases by giving full consideration to prevention, research, treatment and rehabilitation of stricken patients.

In Ohio alone, 68 percent of all deaths of residents during 1946, excluding those from tuberculosis and mental disease, was due to some other form of chronic disease, medical authorities point out.

Of these deaths, heart ailments paced the field accounting for 31 percent, and cancer for 14 percent.

The Importance of "Stepping Down"

Here is the story of a new principle of design that has rocked the industry and given Hudson unique beauty not possible in any other type of car.

Hudson has a new, all steel Monobilt body-and-frame*, part of which is a rugged base structure that permits lowering floors and seats down within the frame. The sketches below illustrate this design problem and show how Hudson's recessed floor provides a low, streamlined silhouette, yet preserves head room.

NEW HUDSON

Here is the low, low, gracefully streamlined Hudson—only five feet from ground to top. You can see how the streamlined roof comes down sharply over the rear seat portion of the car, as compared to the other types of roof lines shown in sketches to the left. But Hudson floors are recessed down within the frame, seats are lowered, so you get more than ample head room.

The "step-down" principle requires years of engineering work, the development of new production techniques and equipment, and millions of dollars of highly specialized new plant investment. Perhaps this explains why Hudson alone offers this vital new design principle today.

You'll probably expect the motor car that is the talk of the nation to offer you even more than beauty and comfort. And it does! THE recessed floor in the new Hudson—now widely known as the "step-down" feature—is the talk of the automobile world. And rightly so! This interesting development is the key to a new kind of motor-car beauty never before obtainable.

People everywhere are attracted by Hudson's low, streamlined silhouette and free-flowing lines.

Only Hudson, because of its exclusive recessed floor that you step down onto, is able to offer streamlined, low-built beauty without asking you to give up interior head room.

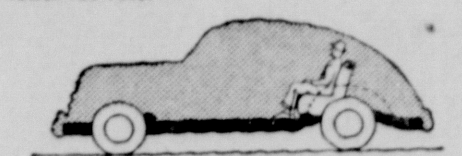

Let's take a frank look at the motor-car designer's problem. Since streamlining an automobile reduces available head room for rear-seat passengers, to achieve a low silhouette and maintain adequate head room, both floor and seats must be lowered to compensate for the lowered roof. The recessed floor is a necessity.

But it is difficult to lower floors and seats, because in all cars, except Hudson, they are built on top of a frame. Only

OTHER CARS

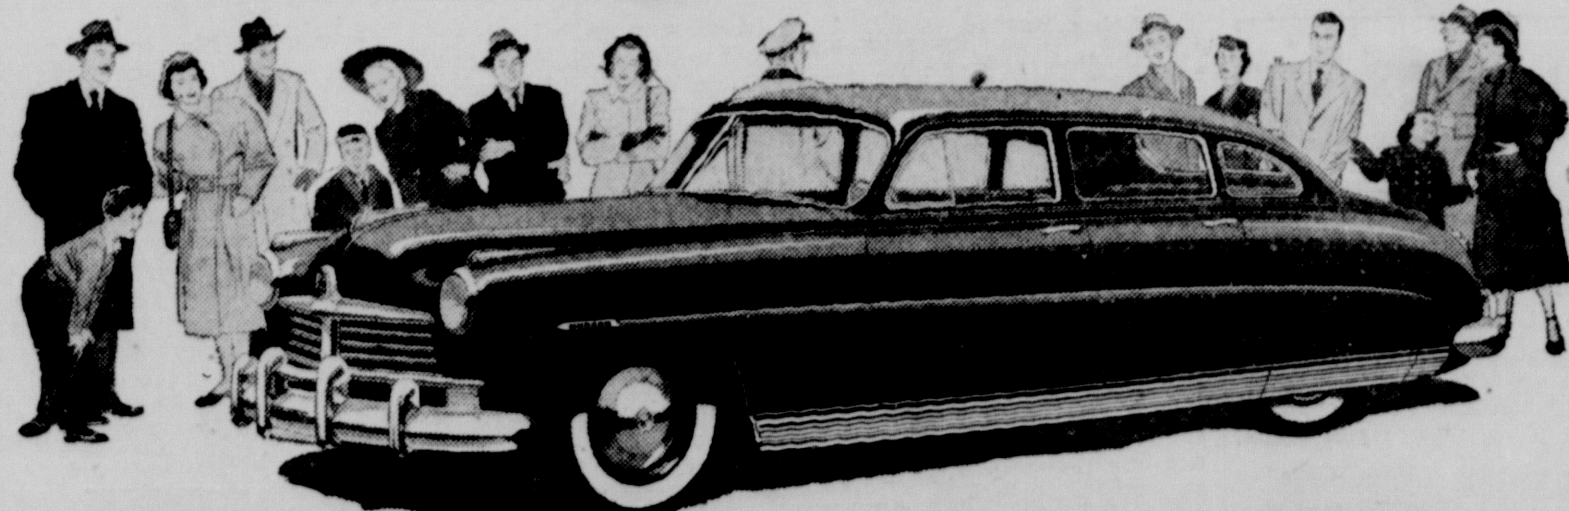

The car above cannot be streamlined because the need for head room above the rear seat (which is built on top of a frame) makes it impossible to lower the roof.

OTHER CARS

Of course, it is possible to adopt free-flowing lines without recessing the floor, as sketched in the car above, but over-all height must be raised, and this destroys the possibility of a low silhouette, which is the mark of the modern motor car.
